

Impeachment could begin Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Impeachment of the President, an almost unthinkable alternative a few days ago, is suddenly a war cry for some and on the lips of many after the weekend firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Members of Congress, away from Washington for the Veterans Day holiday, expressed shock and dismay at the rapid-fire developments that left President Nixon in legal limbo and the attorney general and his deputy out of their jobs.

At least 28 members of the House, where impeachment proceedings must begin, supported initiation of steps to remove Nixon from office. Most were liberal Democrats, but dozens of others in both House and Senate, including some ranking Republicans, said impeachment would now be given serious consideration.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye today called on Nixon to resign, saying Americans "have suffered enough" and "must be spared this new pain and trauma."

In a speech prepared for the AFL-CIO convention in Miami Beach, Inouye thus became the first member of the Senate Watergate committee to urge Nixon to step down.

Another member of the committee Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., said impeachment proceedings probably would begin against Nixon "but I can not see them meeting with great success."

The first formal steps are expected to come Tuesday when Congress returns from the long weekend. Several impeachment resolutions are likely to be introduced, and Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr. of the House Judiciary Committee will be asked to launch an inquiry to determine if grounds for impeachment exist.

White House aides Melvin R. Laird and J. Fred Buzhardt sought to dismiss the talk, predicting that Congress would await the outcome of a White House compromise plan to release partial transcripts of Watergate-related tape recordings authenticated by a senior senator.

It was that plan that precipitated the latest Watergate crisis when special prosecutor Archibald Cox rejected it, saying a summary could not be used as evidence in court and his acceptance would block further efforts to obtain White House documents he needs to make his case.

President Nixon then ordered Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson to fire his special prosecutor, and Richardson resigned rather than comply. The job fell to Richardson's deputy, William D. Ruckelshaus, who also refused and was fired.

Solicitor General Robert H. Bork, No. 3 in command at the Justice Department, thus became acting attorney general and fired Cox. The Watergate special prosecution force was dissolved.

Nixon is under federal court order to surrender the tapes to U.S. District

Judge John J. Sirica for the judge's inspection and decision on whether to turn them over to a grand jury as evidence. Sirica's order was upheld by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and Nixon declined to seek a Supreme Court review before the order went into effect at the end of the week.

Sirica, who is out of the city until Tuesday, directed his staff to research alternatives for his next step, which could include holding the President in contempt of court.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Cox's

Watergate story still has ability to shock nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans already stunned by tales of wiretapping and burglaries, of "dirty tricks" and "plumbers units," found this weekend that the Watergate story still has the ability to shock.

In less than two days, with events tumbling over one another, the attorney general resigned and the deputy attorney general was fired; the special Watergate prosecutor was discharged after he clashed head on with the President; and there were new cries for impeachment.

The first development came Friday night when President Nixon proposed a compromise on the release of White House tapes pertaining to the Watergate case and sought both by special prosecutor Archibald Cox and the Senate Watergate Committee.

The President, citing the doctrine of executive privilege, previously had refused to give up the tapes, saying it was up to him to decide whether to release them.

Now, after mounting pressure for some sort of settlement, Nixon said he would prepare a summary of the tapes to give to U.S. Dist. Court Judge John J. Sirica, who had ordered the President to give him the nine tapes involved in the dispute.

The President said he had agreed to let U.S. Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., listen to the tapes to verify the accuracy of the summary. At the same time, Nixon ordered Cox to halt his efforts to get the complete recordings.

Sens. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., and Howard Baker, R-Tenn., the senior members of the Watergate committee, had agreed to the plan, Nixon said.

Cox did not. He said Friday night that if he agreed to the President's conditions, he would be violating "my solemn pledge to the Senate and the country."

During the day Saturday, problems started building. Sens. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, and Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., two other members of the Watergate committee, said they hadn't been consulted about the compromise.

Saturday afternoon, Ervin indicated there may have been some confusion about just what Nixon planned to give the judge. He said it was his understanding that the President would provide partial, verbatim transcripts — not summaries.

Saturday night, Ervin said he'd been in touch with the White House and was told "my interpretation of the agreement is identical with that of the White House."

In the meantime, Cox held a news conference and reaffirmed his intention to fight for the tapes. He said he might "seek an order why the respondent (Nixon) should not be judged in contempt."

Rumors started flying. Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson was ready to resign. Nixon was going to fire Cox.

Nixon fired Cox and abolished the prosecutor's Watergate task force. Richardson — who appointed Cox — resigned rather than discharge him. Deputy Atty. Gen. William D. Ruckelshaus also refused to fire Cox and was, in turn, dismissed. Solicitor General Robert H. Bork became acting attorney general.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Richardson "felt obliged to resign" because he believed Nixon's order to Cox violated an understanding with Congress that the prosecutor would get a free hand in the Watergate probe. Ziegler said the government's Watergate investigations would continue "with thoroughness and vigor."

Reaction was swift.

It was a very special day

MILWAUKEE (AP) — It was a very special day for Betty Anick, and she spent her busy Sunday making a speaking appearance and visiting with her family.

It marked the fifth anniversary of the day when the West Allis housewife received a new heart in a transplant operation at St. Luke's Hospital on Oct. 21, 1968.

Sunday Mrs. Anick, 54, was guest speaker at the state convention of the sorority Beta Sigma Chi.

Later she visited with her children and family and "came home very tired" after the busy day.

Mrs. Anick, who had suffered from chronic heart disease before the transplant, is the third longest surviving heart transplant recipient.

Hijackers threaten hostages

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Four Tupamaro guerrillas who hijacked an Argentine jetliner in a bid to get to Cuba threatened to begin killing their five hostages today unless they got a smaller plane to take them out of the country.

Bolivian President Hugo Banzer refused the smaller plane but sent word to the terrorists that he would grant them the necessary papers to leave Bolivia if they released the hostages. He said if they made any attempt against the lives of the hostages the hijackers would be killed.

The hijacked Aerolineas Argentinas Boeing 737 cannot take off from the small airfield in the Bolivian city of Yacuiba, 900 miles southeast of La Paz.

The plane is surrounded by heavily armed Bolivian soldiers and policemen, who have refused to provide food or drinks to the plane since it landed.

The four hijackers — two men and two young women — released 40 passengers and crewmembers Sunday. But they held as hostages the pilot, the copilot, a congressman, a Frenchman and another passenger whose nationality was not known.

The Boeing 737 was on a domestic flight between Buenos Aires and Salta, near the Bolivian border, when it was commandeered Saturday. The kidnapers forced the pilot to land at Tucuman, in northern Argentina, and demanded fuel to fly to Lima, Peru, from where they intended to proceed to Cuba.

But Argentine President Juan D. Peron refused to negotiate with them and the plane had to take off with its fuel tanks almost dry. To Yacuiba, close to the Argentine border.

Year round DST seen as answer to fuel crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospect of widespread fuel shortages has given new currency to an old idea — year round daylight savings time. But it's not likely anyone will be able to sell it in time for the coming winter.

An extra hour of daylight at the end of the short winter days would cut down on the use of lighting, resulting in "substantial energy savings," says Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., the latest legislative champion of year-round DST.

But there are those, including the Nixon administration, who disagree, making passage of a year 'round DST bill during the current session of Congress doubtful. The bill certainly will not be approved before everybody sets their clocks back one hour on Oct. 28.

The Department of Transportation recently concluded that "the institution of year 'round daylight savings time would reduce nationwide demand for electricity by not more than one to two per cent."

DOT said, the demand for electricity is principally dependent on electrical gadgets which are operated regardless of how bright the sun is shining.

The nation went to year 'round DST in an effort to save electricity during World War II, but DOT noted that that was before electric toothbrushes and pencil sharpeners.

Great Britain tried it for three years ending in 1971 and found a reduction of nearly four per cent in the number of serious traffic accidents. But DOT said there is insufficient data to enable it to determine whether similar results could be achieved here.

The Department of Justice says there's no way of telling what effect a later sunset would have on crime, although it suggested that would-be felons might simply postpone their activities until a darker hour.

The problem of sending children to school while it's still dark, could be eliminated by starting classes an hour or so later, DOT said.

The controversy traditionally has pitted city dwellers against country folk. Urbanites like the idea of walking or driving home in the relative safety of daylight, while farmers complain that DST, particularly during the winter months, forces them to do their morning chores in pitch darkness.

Egypt, Israel agree to end shooting today

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. officials said today they were relying on the "good faith" of the Israelis and Arabs to put a cease-fire into effect in the Mideast.

The U.N. Security Council adopted a cease-fire resolution worked out by the Soviets and the Americans. The truce was to go into effect at 11:50 p.m. CDT, 12 hours after the adoption of the resolution, U.N. officials said.

Both Israel and Egypt said they would accept the cease-fire along the current battle lines, but there was no word from Syria. Presumably the Syrians will go along with the Egyptians. Jordan also will go along, a high source in Amman said, but Iraq said it would not observe the cease-fire. However, the Iraqi position was not expected to seriously affect the military situation.

The immediate test appeared to be whether the Egyptian, Syrian and Israeli forces, engaged in a bitter war since Oct. 6, could now stop fighting. The Israelis have taken more Syrian territory than they held before the war started, and a chunk of Egyptian territory west of the Suez Canal. The Egyptians having recaptured some of the Sinai peninsula occupied by Israel since 1967.

"President (Anwar) Sadat, as supreme commander of the armed forces, has ordered the General Command to cease fire at the deadline set by the U.N. Security Council, provided the enemy abides by it," Cairo radio said.

The Israeli government announcement accepting the call also set conditions, insisting Israel would continue its refusal to withdraw from the Jordanian, Syrian and Egyptian lands captured in 1967 unless the Arabs agree to a peace treaty.

The announcement was read as part of a regular afternoon newscast and did not specify whether Sadat also accepted the other two main provisions of the resolution: peace negotiations and implementation of the long-debated 1967 U.N. resolution calling for Israeli withdrawal from captured Arab lands in return for secure and recognized borders.

But it said the Egyptian leader has received "assurances" Sunday from Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev relayed by the Soviet ambassador to Cairo.

As the deadline approached, tough fighting was reported near the Golan Heights and on the western bank of the Suez Canal.

Syria said its troops were locked in a fierce battle with Israelis for control of a strategic position on Mt. Hermon overlooking the Golan Heights battleground.

Cairo said Egyptian infantry and tanks were attacking the Israeli invasion force on the western side of the canal in an apparent attempt to push them back as far as possible before the cease-fire hour.

States' GOP chairmen worry but back Nixon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Republican state chairmen say President Nixon's latest action in the Watergate tapes dispute will cause new problems for the chief executive, maybe even an impeachment move.

But the GOP officials oppose such a move and say Nixon was within his rights to fire special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

An Associated Press survey showed the party leaders were surprised by Nixon's dismissal of Cox and dismayed over the departure from the administration of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and Deputy Atty. Gen. William D. Ruckelshaus.

Many chairmen said they regretted that the problem had arisen and that a compromise worked out by Nixon had not been accepted by Cox, but argued that the President had the power to act as he did.

"He's the boss," said Kansas GOP chairman Jack Ranson. He said talk of impeachment had been circulating for months "on the part of certain elements of the Democratic party and the news media," but predicted the rumors would die down after a while.

Harry Rosenzweig, Arizona Republican chairman, said, "I just wish a couple of days would pass without some shattering bulletin." He said Richardson and Ruckelshaus were "outstanding public servants and we needed them."

William Barrett, the Nebraska GOP chairman, defended the President. "I still feel Mr. Nixon is right in refusing the tapes. He has to protect his office. It's not only his privilege; it's his duty."

Many officials were too surprised to say much. "I don't have too much reaction," commented New Jersey Republican chairman John J. Spoltore. "I was shocked when I read it."

Asked about impeachment, Spoltore said: "I wouldn't know on that. I don't know enough about it."

Delaware GOP chairman Herman Brown said Sunday afternoon he didn't want to comment until he had further information; North Carolina Republican chairman Frank Rouse answered phone calls for comment with a simple, "No," Ohio GOP chairman Kent McGough asserted: "I don't know what to say."

David Green, Oregon Republican chairman, said, "I'm simply at a loss for words. All I can do is sit here and wait for the next development." Minnesota Republican chairman Rudy Boschwitz said, "I really don't know what to make of it. You've heard of that play, 'Stop the World, I Want to Get Off.' That's how I feel right now."

Arabs, Israelis skeptical

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Many Arabs and Israelis were skeptical about the U.N. call for an in-place cease-fire today in the Middle East war.

The governments of Israel and Egypt said they would abide by the cease-fire. But some residents of the two countries were skeptical.

A columnist for the influential Israeli newspaper Maariv said the cease-fire was a "trap ... to prevent our victory, to rescue the Arab armies from the results of their evil attacks. Already it contains the danger of the next war."

People in Tel Aviv heard about the proposal on their way home from work. "On the one hand, I'm glad if the fighting stops," said Tami Rosenfeld, a government secretary. "But on the other hand, we said we will smash the enemy and we haven't done so yet. If things stop where they are, all our blood will have been spilled for nothing."

Arie Fried, who lost a leg in the 1967

Middle East war, said, "We have a cease-fire and we're holding their land. No peace comes. Then the Arabs start claiming we started this war and stole their land. Pretty soon the world starts believing that, and they get encouraged to go to war again. It's just a vicious circle."

In Egypt, many people said the action came too early.

"For Egypt to accept ceasefire now is to repeat the crisis of 1948," said Attia Masoud, the owner of a Cairo shoeshine parlor, who fought in the 1948 war. "In 1948 the Arabs accepted a cease-fire with Israel which gave the Jewish state a chance to get more arms and defeat the Arabs."

Hassan Abdel Rahman, a student, said, "We sacrificed thousands of our brothers and sons in 1967, and billions of pounds during this and the last war. Now it is ridiculous to accept a cease-fire before we are sure of the complete withdrawal of Israel."

Syrian officials had no immediate statement on the ceasefire, but they were expected to follow Egypt's example of acceptance.

In Damascus, the official state radio did not broadcast the news of the proposal.

Jordan, which has kept a low profile throughout the war although it's been a participant, also had no immediate official comment.

But Jordanians greeted the news with cautious optimism.

"We Jordanians have always wanted a cease-fire provided it led to a just solution," said Francis Hattar, a maintenance technician.

"If the Israelis have agreed already to (Egyptian) President (Anwar) Sadat's peace plan, then I see no reason why fighting should not stop tonight. But if they have not agreed to return immediately to the 1967 lines, the Arabs will have to fight them back to those lines."

Your money's worth

How to save money with a decorator

BY SYLVIA PORTER

This, the autumn, is the peak season for decorating and redecorating rooms, houses and apartments—and literally millions of you are now fixing up, undoing and redoing one or more rooms or doing a major interior decorating job on your entire home.

If you're typical, your enthusiasm for the overhaul far overshadows your qualifications and, as a result, you may be tempted to hire an interior decorator. Underscoring this is the fact that the use of interior decorators and decorating services is burgeoning, spreading too from upper family income brackets into the middle income brackets. And backing it up is the astounding fact that one-fourth of the furniture bought in the U.S. today is being purchased by interior decorators and designers.

How do you shop for this type of service? What charges should you be prepared for?

Before you hire a professional decorator, find out if your local stores offer, as many now do, free counseling services on home furnishings problems, either at the store or in your home. You'll also get many decorating ideas merely by studying the variety of furniture ensembles (or model rooms) on display at most large stores.

If you decide to hire one of the nation's 45,000 professional interior decorators, ask either the National Society of Interior Designers (315 E. 62nd St., New York, N. Y. 10021) or the American Institute of Interior Designers (730 Fifth Ave., New York, N. Y. 10019) for names of reputable members in your area.

Ask friends who have worked with interior decorators and designers what their experiences—and costs—have been.

Be sure you communicate well, both ways, with the person you choose and that the designer will build on your ideas, tastes and preferences in whatever job he or she takes on for you.

Insist on sketches and drawings from the decorator, showing the plan or scheme to be followed. Such sketches are a crucially important clue to what a room or rooms will look like when the decorator is finished.

Ask the decorator to help you plan if you are furnishing and decorating your first home and if you have to spread out your purchases over several years. This sound plan will let you know precisely where you stand in your home furnishings from year to year. You also will be able to project which of your purchases can be switched to other uses as time goes on—e.g., a first year wrought iron table and chairs might go from the living room to the terrace or recreation room, or a second year throw rug for the dining alcove might be moved to the bedroom the third year, etc.

Discuss costs and fees in advance and be sure these details are in a written contract for a given job. Write in this contract what services and which furnishings will be included, what completion date is anticipated and on what schedule you will pay for the work done.

What about charges?

Typically, you pay one-third of the total agreed-upon price when you sign the contract, another one-third when the designer orders the furnishings you want and the balance when the job is done.

Typical decorators' fees for a preliminary consultation now run about $25 an hour, and some charge as much as $100 to $200 for each 60 minutes of consultation time.

Procedures vary, and be sure you check them out. Some decorators, including architects who offer interior designing services, charge clients only the difference between the wholesale and retail value of whatever furniture and material they buy for you. Others charge a flat fee.

But a fundamental point is that despite the apparent charges, a clever decorator often can save you money—by buying furniture and materials directly from manufacturers and wholesalers and getting substantial discounts all along the line; by finding practical uses for unused spaces; by turning inexpensive "raw materials" into imaginative and attractive designs; by helping you sidestep the pitfalls, economic and otherwise, of dealing through untrained, unsophisticated retail salesmen and women; by making sure you avoid costly decorating errors (such as clashing colors, oversize pieces of furniture, etc.); by knowing where the best bargains are in goods you need.

In fact, if you choose carefully among decorators, communicate well with the one you choose and take every possible advantage of the cost saving a good decorator is capable of offering, you well may find in the end that the whole job can pay for itself.

Inconsistent play baffles Costello after Bucks win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Coach Larry Costello has no complaints about his Milwaukee Bucks' 5-1 start, but inconsistent play—their trademark most of last season—deeply concerns him.

The Cleveland Cavaliers, who have beaten Milwaukee only once in 13 tries since joining the National Basketball Association a few years ago, scrambled back from 12 and nine point deficits and twice led by one point in the third quarter Saturday night. The Bucks finally pulled out a 101-88 victory as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 16 of his 33 points in the last period.

Bob Dandridge added 24 points for the Bucks and Austin Carr led Cleveland

Bucks' Cunningham cuts left big toe

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee Bucks' basketball player Dick Cunningham was released after treatment at Elmbrook Memorial Hospital for a laceration of his left big toe Sunday.

The 6-foot-10 Cunningham, a reserve center, reportedly cut the toe while mowing the lawn of his suburban Glendale home. It was not immediately known how much playing time he will miss, if any. The Bucks' next game is against Buffalo here Wednesday night.

with 24. The winless Cavaliers might have come even closer if veteran guard Lennie Wilkens, averaging 17.2 points per game, had not injured an ankle in the second quarter. Wilkens sat out the rest of the way and finished with just two points.

Costello said the Bucks cannot expect to beat Buffalo here Wednesday night unless they wake up.

"If they think Buffalo is another Cleveland, they're in trouble," Costello said. "They're not the Buffalo of old, that's for sure."

"Buffalo has a lot of muscle," he said. "They may have the four best forwards in the league in (Jim) McMillan, (Bob) Kauffman, (Bob) McAdoo and (Garfield) Heard. Randy Smith is not a bad ballplayer and Ernie DiGregorio is really making things happen. They could contend in their division."

Costello wouldn't say the Bucks had let down against Cleveland, but implied it. "I'd like to play Golden State 82 games a year," he said. "At least then I'd know we'd play hard every night. But I don't know what happens to us when we play teams like Cleveland and Seattle."

Costello complimented only reserve center Dick Cunningham, who contributed only three rebounds and no points but sparked Milwaukee with his aggressive play.

Giants crushed by Dallas stampede

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas fullback Walt Garrison celebrated his return to starting status with two touchdown runs and Calvin Hill rushed for more than 100 yards in a 45-28 National Football League victory Sunday over the New York Giants.

Quarterback Roger Staubach threw two touchdown passes in the rout as Dallas remained in second place in the National Conference East with a 4-2 record.

The Giants, losing their fourth consecutive game, dropped to 1-4-1 in the NFC East.

Garrison scored on runs of six and one yards, and Hill, the leading rusher in the NFC, bolted five yards for another touchdown.

The Cowboys built a 17-7 halftime lead and fought off a brief New York flurry in the third quarter in coasting to the victory.

Hill rushed 33 times for 129 yards, and Garrison ran 13 times for 76 yards.

Tight end Billy Joe Dupree blocked two Giant punts in the fourth quarter that led to two Cowboy touchdowns.

Dupree ran 21 yards for a touchdown with a screen pass from Staubach and linebacker D.D. Lewis recovered another Dupree blocked punt in the end zone for touchdown.

Staubach's other touchdown pass was

Jim Hill says Hall's a great defender

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Safety Jim Hill spoke bravely.

"We lost a great player, but we got another—Charlie Hall," Hill said. "Sometimes things of this nature will help a team come closer. We'll have to wait and see."

But Hill and the rest of the Green Bay Packers fully realized that if their gap, now three games, behind the Minnesota Vikings in the National Football Conference's Central Division is going to be closed, it will have to be done without Willie Buchanan.

Buchanan, one of the finest cornerbacks in the National Football League, broke two bones—the fibula and tibia—in his left leg during the Packers' 24-7 defeat by the Los Angeles Rams Sunday. He will be sidelined the rest of the season.

While Hall performed adequately as Buchanan's replacement, injuries at other positions cost the Packers dearly, particularly in the offensive line.

Malcolm Snider started at left tackle in place of Bill Hayhoe, who did not suit up because of a shoulder injury. Although Snider played well at guard a year ago when Gale Gillingham was lost for the season with a knee injury, he was made things happen," Costello said. "Until then there wasn't much life, or if there was I didn't see it. I don't know how we stayed in it, and if it wasn't for our defense we wouldn't have."

Cunningham said he "was just trying to play defense, get the good shooters open and rebound."

"There's a tendency among a lot of guys to let down against a team that's not supposed to be so good," he said. "But for guys in my position who come off the bench, this is our living. I've got to play hard all the time."

The Chargers fell to 1-5 with their fourth straight loss.

Gilliam helps Vikes stay unbeaten, 28-21

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Speedy wide receiver John Gilliam took a reverse 44 yards for a touchdown and hauled in a scoring pass Sunday as the Minnesota Vikings overcame the pesky Philadelphia Eagles 28-21 and remained unbeaten in the National Football League.

Gilliam, in addition to his first-quarter dash that put the Vikings ahead to stay and his 24-yard touchdown pass from Fran Tarkenton in the third quart two Minnesota touchdowns and finished with six receptions for 166 yards.

But the Vikings, with an 11-game winning streak covering all five exhibition games and the first six of the regular season, never really took complete control of the game despite Chuck Foreman's fourth-quarter touchdown run of five yards that gave them a 28-14 lead with 11:18 to play.

With 4:05 left, Charles Young swept 14 yards on an endaround to move the Eagles within a touchdown.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Reserve quarterback Terry Hanratty threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to Ron Shanklin in the final period, rallying the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 26-14 victory over the New York Jets Sunday in a National Football League game.

The once-beaten Steelers trailed 14-12 early in the fourth quarter when coach Chuck Noll benched starter Terry Bradshaw.

Two series later, Hanratty led a decisive 51-yard touchdown march that ended when he pump-faked once and then fired a 16-yard scoring pass to Shanklin all alone in the endzone.

Steeler fullback Franco Harris, plagued by a bruised knee earlier this year, rushed for 102 yards on 26 carries. He added a two-yard plunge for an intermediate touchdown in the final seconds.

The touchdown came after safety Mike Wagner intercepted a desperation pass by Jet rookie Bill Demory and returned it to the New York two-yard line.

The Steelers, 5-1, entered the game tied for the American Conference lead in scoring, but their only other points came on four field goals by Roy Gerela.

The Jets, 2-4, who hadn't scored a first-half touchdown all season, managed two of them to take a 14-9 halftime lead behind rookie quarterback Demory.

Demory, who threw a 35-yard touchdown pass late in the second period, just missed on a bomb to Rich Caster with 2:25 left in the game, when Pittsburgh held a 19-14 lead.

"Buchanan's injury was a freak play where he got tangled up with his own players and a receiver," Coach Dan Devine said.

Falcons took a 17-0 halftime lead on a 43-yard field goal by Nick Mike-Mayer and Hampton's four-yard scoring burst, set up by Ellis' interception and 43-yard return.

The game quickly became a rout in the second half. Mike Mayer kicked a 12-yard field goal after a fumble by San Diego's Willie McGee, and Hampton plunged across from two yards out late in the third quarter before Atlanta Coach Norm Van Brocklin pulled his regulars.

Hampton gained 76 yards in 19 carries while quarterback Bob Lee completed nine of 17 passes for 146 yards.

The Chargers, beaten by the worst shutout score in the history, booed by their home fans who hung banners and chanted in denunciation of Coach Harland Sware.

Bears go Plunk-ett

CHICAGO (AP) — Quarterback Jim Plunkett dashed five yards for a touchdown in the closing minutes, rallying the New England Patriots to a 13-10 National Football League victory over the Chicago Bears Sunday.

The Bears, suffering a third straight defeat for a 1-5 record, were leading 10-6 when Plunkett cut loose with successive passes of 16 and 36 yards to set up his scoring run with 1:56 left.

On the 36-yard pass, Plunkett lost the Neenah beaten in volley tourney

ANTIGO — Neenah High School's bid for a berth in the WIAA volleyball tournament was thwarted by Antigo in the latter's sectional here Saturday.

The host Red Robins chalked up 15-9, 15-9 and 15-10 verdicts over the Rockets and then beat Bayfield to qualify for next Saturday's meet in Neenah's Armstrong Fieldhouse.

The Rockets finished second in the sectional by winning three games from Bayfield in the other sectional test. Their season's mark was 52-23.

Neenah girls win FVA volleyball title

NEENAH — Host Neenah High School captured the championship of the Fox Valley Association's second annual girls' volleyball tournament by defeating Oshkosh West, 15-13, 15-9, in the finals Saturday morning.

Neenah outscored Kaukauna, 15-6, 14-6 in the semi-finals while Oshkosh West turned back Appleton West, 15-4, 13-15, 15-12.

ball cocking his arm to throw, raced back and picked it up, then on the dead run uncorked the aerial to Bob Windsor on the Chicago 10.

Three plays later, Plunkett dashed across from the five. Prior to the pass to Windsor, Plunkett hit Randy Vataha on a 16-yarder, carrying to the Chicago 46.

Bobby Douglass' three-yard pass to Earl Thomas in the second quarter provided Chicago's only touchdown.

Jeff White's two field goals comprised all the Patriots' scoring until Plunkett pulled the game out.

White's first kick was a 32-yarder, giving New England a 3-0 lead in the opening quarter.

After the Bears scored on an 86-yard drive in 15 plays in the second quarter, we'd make a real ball game out of it," he said.

The suddenness with which the Rams struck also had to weigh on the Packers' minds. It created envy in Devine, who said, "I'd like to get a touchdown like that. We fight our butts off for them."

The Rams had gained possession of the ball 18 seconds earlier on their own 30-yard line and took just three plays to score when the Pack's secondary got its signals crossed.

Cornerback Ken Ellis, the victimized defender, confessed, "That was a mistake by myself. Everybody played one coverage, and I played another. I didn't get the call (the defensive signal). It was a mixup on my part."

The Rams caused part of the confusion by lining up in an odd formation with tight end Bob Klein split outside on the right, Jack Snow inside him in a slot position and Jackson all alone on the left.

In between the Rams' two first half scores, they almost had another. Had hit Snow with an apparent 28-yard TD strike, but the Packers received a break on the play—actually three—when the Rams were called for holding. The other two were to Buchanan's tibia and fibula. Jumping up to defend against Snow in the end zone, he came down and fractured both bones in his leg.

For a brief period at the start of the second half, the Packers appeared to have pulled themselves together. Larry Krause, whose play on the special teams was one of the Pack's few bright spots, made a crunching tackle on the opening kickoff, putting the Rams in a hole at their 10-yard line.

And six plays later after forcing the Rams into a punting situation, Fred Carr burst through the line—"I just got off the ball, charged hard over the shoulder of the center and nobody touched me," he explained—and chased punter Dave Chapple toward the White kicked an 11-yard field goal 1:09 before halftime to pull the Patriots to within 7-6.

Midway in the third quarter, the Bears took a 10-6 lead on Mirro Roder's 30-yard field goal. The victory gave the underdog Patriots a 2-4 record.

sideline where Dave Purefoy ran him out-of-bounds, giving the Packers possession on the Ram 35.

From there in four plays the Packers moved in for a touchdown as MacArthur Lane culminated the short drive with a 23-yard option pass to Barry Smith.

"At this point," as Devine said later, "We needed to hold them. We came out in the second half, covered the kickoff well and didn't let the kicker get a kick off, I thought we caught fire, temporarily, but we didn't."

Instead the Rams marched right back for their second crucial score of the game as Ray climaxed a 47-yard march with a 40-yard field goal.

And after that the storm turned in to a blizzard for the Packers.

Fred Dryer provided the final embarrassment by scoring two fourth quarter safeties. First, he dumped Scott Hunter in the end zone and then Jim Del Gaizo.

Phipps spurs Cleveland

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland quarterback Mike Phipps ran for two touchdowns and passed for two more as the Browns smashed the winless Houston Oilers 42-13 Sunday in an National Football League contest.

Phipps' first score came on a keeper from the one that climaxed a 46-yard, six-play drive and gave the Browns a 14-0 lead. In the second period, he tossed scoring passes of 21 yards to Fair Hooker and three yards to Frank Pitts, giving the Browns a 28-0 halftime spread.

His final tally came in the last quarter when the Oilers were making a belated comeback. Phipps dropped back to pass and, when he couldn't find a receiver, broke a tackle and went up the middle from the 13 to give the Browns a 35-13 advantage.

The Browns' other scores came on an eight-yard jaunt by running back Leroy Kelly in the first period and a two-yard pass from second-string quarterback Don Horn to running back Bo Scott late in the fourth quarter.

Houston, came out strong in the second half, getting on the scoreboard early in the third period when quarterback Dan Pastorini hit wide receiver Eddie Hinton with a 34-yard pass in the end zone.

The Houston defense held the Browns for a while and gave kicker Skip Butler a chance to kick field goals of 31 and nine yards.

The victory boosted Cleveland's record to 4-2. Houston, playing its first game since general manager Sid Gillman replaced Bill Petersen as coach, dropped to 0-6.

The 42 points was the Browns' highest scoring total since 1969, when they defeated the Dallas Cowboys 42-10.

Cincinnati tips Chiefs

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cornerback Lamar Parrish returned a punt 47 yards to set up Cincinnati's first touchdown and prevented a Kansas City touchdown with an end zone interception, sparking the Bengals to a 14-6 National Football League victory Sunday.

Running back Essex Johnson broke open the tense defensive struggle with a 46-yard gallop to the Chiefs 14 early in the fourth quarter. Rookie Charles "Boobie" Clark capped the 80-yard drive with a three-yard touchdown run.

Clark, who gained 118 yards in last week's 19-7 upset of Pittsburgh, rushed for 102 yards in 25 carries. Johnson added 92 in 13 attempts.

The Bengals, now 4-2 and unbeaten at home in six outings, including the exhibition season, unleashed an awesome defensive rush for the second straight week, sacking Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson five times. City quarterback Len Dawson five times.

Williams waits for Yank call

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Williams quit on top as manager of the Oakland Athletics, then parked himself at the telephone to await a bid to try to rebuild the dynasty of the New York Yankees.

"I'd love to manage the Yankees," the mustachioed 44-year-old winner of consecutive World Series titles said Sunday in making public one of the poorest kept secrets in the baseball world.

"But, honestly, they haven't talked to me and I haven't talked to them." This is an oversight that insiders are sure will be soon corrected.

The Yankees, after losing Manager Ralph Houk to the Detroit Tigers, are looking for a strong, charismatic leader to combat the escalating and fervent fan appeal of their city rivals, the New York Mets, with whom they must share the same stadium next year.

No one fits the mold better than Williams, a popular, articulate man who has proved his worth by carrying three teams, including Boston in 1967, into the World Series, and winning two of them.

Williams' dramatic departure also leaves a void at the helm of the colorful and free-swinging A's, with their roster of heroic malcontents and a maverick owner, Charles O. Finley, who is constantly at odds with the baseball brass.

One of the most widely circulated rumors was that the innovative and unpredictable Finley might meet the present situation with another of his bombshells and name the first black manager of the major leagues.

The veteran Frank Robinson, with another year to go on his contract with the California Angels, is one of the black players mentioned. Maury Wills, formerly of the Los Angeles Dodgers but now a broadcaster, is another.

Williams made the announcement of his resignation in the wild, champagne-popping dressing room of the A's moments after his team had beaten the New York Mets 5-2 in the seventh and climactic game of the Series.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill Kilmer threw touchdown passes to veteran

Charley Taylor and rookie Mike Hancock as the Washington Redskins defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 31-13 Sunday in the National Football League.

Charley Harroway also went over from the one for another Redskins touchdown, set up by linebacker Dave Robinson's pass interception and 39-yard return.

With 1:15 remaining in the game, Mike Bass intercepted a Jim Hart pass and returned it 68 yards for a touchdown, setting off a fight in the end zone between players from both teams and fans who came out of the stands.

Another struggle erupted with 21 seconds left, and Washington's Herb Mul-Key and St. Louis' Jack LeVeck were thrown out of the game.

Kilmer, substituting for injured Sonny Jurgensen, connected on 16 of 23 passes, including a 22-yard touchdown to Taylor and a one-yard toss to Hancock. Taylor hauled in seven aeriels for 153 yards in the first half.

The victory was the fifth for the Redskins against one loss, a 34-27 defeat at the hands of the Cardinals.

St. Louis has now lost four in a row after winning its first two games of the season.

The Cardinals were unable to muster much of an offensive attack in the first half, gaining only two field goals of 32 and 31 yards by Jim Bakken.

Net tourney won by Chris Evert

BOCA RATON, Fla. (AP) — Chris Evert defeated Nancy Richey Gunter for the first time in her career Sunday, 6-3, 6-3, winning the $25,000 first prize in a $110,000 women's professional tennis tournament.

Miss Evert, 18, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., had lost five previous matches against her Lake Livingston, Tex., opponent.

But she dominated Mrs. Richey this time by using drop shots.

Miss Evert scored nine of her points in the match on the short shots which died after they cleared the net.

A's Dick Green plans to retire

OAKLAND (AP) — Dick Green, the Oakland second baseman who changed his mind about retiring two years ago, said after the end of the World Series Sunday: "I think it's time to quit" to quit.

The 32-year-old infielder from South Dakota added, "I'm happy to be going out on top."

Green missed most of the 1972 season because of a back injury but returned to a fulltime job this year and started all the World Series games against the New York Mets.

He announced two years ago he was retiring, but A's owner Charles O. Finley talked him into returning to baseball in the spring of 1971.

A spare to open the final line all but wiped out the last flickering hope. But then Ebben started putting the ball on the line and finished with 11 strikes for a 290 finale.

Ebben carries a 183 average in the Super Bowl league. He also bowls at Village Lanes where he owns a 179 average.

He attributes his success to a new ball which he purchased prior to this season.

Aspin uses press release as a tool

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent staff writer

The volume of press releases flowing from the office of Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., is said to have set records.

The content — a major share blowing the whistle on Defense Department activities Aspin regards as wasteful — has won him national attention.

The second-term representative of the First District explained in an interview Saturday why and how he wages his continual campaign for the eyes and ears of the news media, rather than playing the role of quiet, meek congressional newcomer.

His activities have brought down the wrath of the chairman of the armed services committee on which he serves, Rep. Edward Hebert, D-La., a circumstance most young congressmen seek to avoid.

Aspin described his activities as simply using the tools available to him to circumvent a committee that is heavily stacked against him and his views.

Aspin claims the armed services committee is overwhelmingly populated with congressmen from districts having big defense industries or military installations in their districts. The Defense Department, he claims, as a result has a fairly free hand with the committee.

The press release is a means, Aspin said, of "making changes by embarrassing people." When he called public attention to plans to build a mock prison camp at the Air Force Academy and to practices involving the use of lower-ranked military personnel as gardeners and babysitters for upper-echelon officers, the practice stopped or the plans have been abandoned in many cases, he said.

"With more seniority or more balance on the committee, I could work through the committee," Aspin explained. Being halfway through his second term, he ranks near the bottom of the committee in seniority and influence.

Lately Aspin has found it possible to work through the legislative process. He played an active role in leading the House to make a 5 per cent, $950 million, cut in the military authorization bill recently, over objections from Hebert and the committee. It was not the only floor battle in which the committee was reversed, though it is a rarity for the House to vote against one of its committees.

Aspin says such action is possible because the balance in Congress between the conservative and liberal coalitions is close and votes can be changed by swinging a relatively small number of members.

But Aspin's use of the press release

Budget's tax is $375,000 under ceiling

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

Mayor James Sutherland's 1974 executive budget will carry a tax levy of approximately $375,000 less than the state will allow under a tax levy increase limitation adopted as part of the 1974-75 state budget.

"This is possible because my objective in preparing the executive budget has been to achieve the lowest practicable tax rate rather than simply to stay under the state imposed limitation," said the mayor, in a news release from his office today.

The announcement came in lieu of an executive budget, which the mayor had been hopeful of getting to aldermen today.

It now looks like a printed package will come out Tuesday or Wednesday. "This delay is directly attributable to the fact that we still have not been able to obtain a firm figure from the state as to the amount of the city's estimated 1974 state shared taxes," said Sutherland, adding that he did not want to print up a budget with estimates already on hand that could be changed once the latest state figures came in.

Sutherland's statement combined news of the expected tax levy's relationship with the state limit with an attack on claims that the state-adopted tax levy limit would work to lower local property tax rates. He has said before that loopholes in the formula actually allow for significant increases in local spending.

The delay in release of the executive budget is not expected to slow down budget deliberations, however. The intent is to publish a budget Thursday and begin finance committee hearings on it next Monday.

The original tax levy increase figure put out by the state was $284,000, but that was immediately challenged by city officials who said wage and fringe benefit increases alone would account for more of an increase than that.

The city's appeal was based on a different formula it could use to establish a tax levy limit, one which would allow the city to increase expenditures from all revenues six per cent over 1973. Using this formula, Finance Director Reynold Running said the city's tax levy limit would be much higher than $284,000.

To compute the figure, however, the city needs the shared tax estimates. Sutherland said the city has an estimate from the Alliance of Cities in August which said the city could expect $2,763,592 in 1974, or $9,000 less than what it received in 1973.

"Hopefully this figure will increase substantially; if it does not, local property taxpayers will have still further justification for criticism of the much ballyhooed state claims of major progress in reducing the burden of local property taxation," said Sutherland, in today's statement.

Sutherland said the uncertainty over the amount of shared taxes means the city cannot figure a "reliable" local tax levy for next year, but does not prohibit the projections on how much the levy will be below the state levy limit.

"This action does respond to the needs of local taxpayers," Sutherland said of his projection that the final proposed levy will be $375,000 lower than the state limit.

"Hopefully it will also come as a pleasant surprise to those state lawmakers who, in the process of enacting a state budget containing a 44 per cent increase also enacted a six per cent local spending increase limitation in order to protect local property taxpayers from 'spendthrift' local governments," he continued.

Baha'i plans observance of UN Day strategy

A special United Nations Day program has been planned by the Baha'i community of Appleton. It will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday at 1353 W. College Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Nyseth, of Eau Claire, will speak on Guatemala, where they taught. Mrs. Nyseth is a former Spanish teacher at Kaukauna High School.

The UN has proclaimed Oct. 24 as World Development Information Day, to inform the public of the economic and social development programs sponsored by the United Nations throughout the world.

The concern for the development led to the creation of an international development strategy in 1970, calling for the close cooperation between the rich and poor nations.

The Baha'is have taken an active interest in this endeavor and the community has achieved consultative status with the Economic and Social Council of the UN. It is a world religion with followers in more than 300 countries.

114 rape case counts dropped

An eleventh hour plea bargain at noon today resulted in the dismissal of 114 charges and reductions on seven other counts stemming from an assault on two teen-age Appleton girls by a Chicago motorcycle group last Feb. 25.

Trial was to have started this morning in Circuit Court before Judge Robert Pfiffner of Chippewa Falls for 12 members of the D.C. Eagles, who were charged with 121 counts of forcible rape, abduction and other rape-related charges.

Under terms of the plea bargain made between the Outagamie County district attorney's office, defense lawyers and parents of the two 15-year-old girls who were victims of the attack, five men pleaded guilty to one charge each of having sexual intercourse with a minor.

Again under terms of the agreement announced by Dist. Atty. John Ensley, each man was fined $1,000 and costs and was placed on five years probation to the Wisconsin Department of Health and Social Services after Pfiffner stayed execution of five-year prison sentences against four of them.

The five who pleaded guilty were Alan J. Snortum, 19, 230 Broad St., Menasha; Noel W. Sheritt, 25, formerly of Chicago and now living in Winnebago County, and Robert C. Hannigan, 21; Robert E. Freeman, 37, and Russell J. Lafferty, 27, all of the Chicago area.

No prison sentence was imposed then stayed for Lafferty.

All five have been charged with numerous other counts which were dismissed on motions by Ensley, who has been assisted by attorney Dennis Herrling whom he hired as special prosecutor.

Two defendants, James P. Bloy, 21, 1513 S. Oneida St., Appleton, and William E. Lux, 27, Chicago, pleaded guilty to reduced charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

After the court session, Ensley issued widening the College Avenue strip to 52 feet, attaching to its authorization the stipulation that nothing would be implemented until Harland Bartholomew & Associates, planning consultants, came in with an up-dated city plan before the end of the year.

In its 1966 plan, the consultants had proposed the Franklin Street bypass. Miller told the forum last week, however, that he has not seen much support for the bypass plan on the city council and gave it "slim" chances of ever being implemented.

a statement which said that he didn't think the two girls could have stood up under the pressure of two days of cross-examination.

"If the girls didn't identify (the men), the case probably was going to be dismissed by the judge," Ensley said.

Herrling termed it "unthinkable" that the girls should be subjected to cross-examination.

Ensley said the decision on the plea bargain was reached after the defense attorney suggested it this morning. "and because the case depends on two young girls' recalling . . . a night of terror."

Under terms of the bargain, Pfiffner withheld sentence, fined the men $500 each and placed them on one year's probation.

Lux and Bloy also had been charged with multiple felony counts.

All charges were dismissed, on motions by Ensley, in the cases of Robert J. Wysocky, 27, 504 N. Monroe St., Little Chute, and Donald Chenoweth, 29, Debra Achor, 22., Bertram Siegel, 27, and Daniel LeDesma, 34, all of the Chicago area.

The men who were convicted and live outside Wisconsin were ordered not to come to Wisconsin during their probationary periods.

The men living in the state but outside Outagamie County were ordered to stay out of this county during their probation, except to work.

Pfiffner said he was not obligated to

City grocers don't want beer curfew

Appleton grocery store owners are making a last ditch effort to stop the City Council from enacting a 9 p.m. curfew on beer sales from their premises.

The move comes after the council passed, with a 19-1 vote, a resolution calling for the change and turned back an effort, with a 13-5 vote, to reconsider it.

"Just about everybody that has a supermarket in the city" is going to sign a letter calling on the council to defeat the proposed ordinance change when it comes up for final passage Nov. 7, says William Doering, vice president of a firm which owns four Fox Cities' supermarkets, including one in Appleton.

Doering said the letter, which has already been drafted, will be sent to city hall early this week.

In the letter, Doering said the supermarket owners will point out that the ordinance does not accomplish one of its primary goals: to bring conformity to regulations on beer sales by all outlets in the city.

Taverns will still be able to sell beer past 9 p.m., he said. Fox Valley liquor store operators, who support the curfew, said a prime goal was to bring uniformity to carry-out beer sales. Another intent was to cut down on problems resulting from drinking after taverns closed, problems that the liquor store owners said were blamed on them even though grocery stores could be just as culpable.

Doering said, "If you cut all the chaff away, the real reason they (tavern operators) want it is because they don't want to have to stay open past 9 o'clock."

The City Council approved the change more out of fear of a battle with the Fox Cities Beer and Liquor Retailers Association than anything else, added Doering.

The supermarket owner said the liquor retailers were using the proposed curfew on grocery store beer sales as a way of getting liquor store retailers themselves to close at a uniform hour. Some retailers, although prohibited by state law from selling liquor past 9 p.m., were staying open past that hour in order to compete with grocery stores in beer sales.

The manager of two local Stop-N-Go stores wrote a letter to the city last week charging that the curfew was Temporary E. College solution?

A temporary solution to the E. College Avenue traffic problem — widening the pavement with a 52-foot asphalt overlay and temporary curb and gutter — has been placed in the 1974 executive budget by Mayor James Sutherland.

The proposal comes from Public Works Director Robert Miller, who said it would cut construction costs to a third of what they would be for installation of a concrete pavement and will "still preserve all available options" for the final solution adopted to solve the College Avenue traffic problem.

The life expectancy of the proposed roadway is ten years, Miller told the mayor. Miller has said in the past that it would probably take at least ten years for the city to implement a proposed Franklin Street bypass for College Avenue traffic that is supported by Lawrence University and residents along E. College.

Miller told Sutherland in a memo today that his recommendation for the temporary pavement comes with the recognition that city planning consultants are expected to come in with a "qualified interim recommendation" for E. College that can be implemented before the long-range plans.

The project would cost $56,700, Miller said, compared with something in the area of $150,000 that Miller projected for widening College between Drew and Rankin streets with a concrete pavement.

Miller said his recommendation for a temporary four-lane pavement recognizes both the "pressing need" for repair of the deteriorated pavement and the need for four lanes to handle the 19,000 vehicles per day that now use the roadway.

The university and residents in the area are opposed to any widening of the KAUKAUNA — An 18-year-old Wrightstown man was killed early today when his car missed a curve, struck a tree and disintegrated next to Outagamie County Trunk ZZ, one mile east of Kaukauna.

Dead on arrival at Kaukauna Community Hospital was Ronald J. Martzahl, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Martzahl, 364 Fair St. According to Coroner Bernard H. Kemps, Martzahl died from severe head and chest injuries in the 3 a.m. crash.

pavement, fearing that such a move would further endanger student and other pedestrians and encourage heavier traffic volumes.

Miller, at a forum on campus last week, countered that something had to be done to relieve present traffic congestion on the through-campus roadway, whether or not the city eventually goes to the Franklin Street bypass or some other plan as a permanent solution.

The Appleton City Council has already authorized Miller to draw up plans for Police said Martzahl was driving alone in the 1964 model car and heading northeast on County ZZ apparently at a high rate of speed. The vehicle skidded on the pavement and continued on the shoulder and through a ditch for more than 750 feet before smashing into a tree on the Norbert Schmidt farm, route 3, Kaukauna.

Schmidt was awakened by the crash and summoned authorities, who said the car's wreckage was strewn over a 100-foot area of the Schmidt property.

Martzahl was pinned in the section of the auto which remained against the tree.

The victim, one of six Martzahl children, was a June graduate of Wrightstown High School and was employed by the Thilmany Pulp & Paper Co., Kaukauna. The body was released to the De Wane Funeral Home in Wrightstown.

The death was the 34th on county roads this year, compared with 19 on March of Dimes benefit

Dracula's coffin — a promotional gimmick to help raise funds for the March of Dimes — arrived in Appleton Friday and will remain here through Halloween. A hearse pulled the coffin from the Outagamie County Airport to a "haunted house" at 224 W. Prospect Ave. The house is open to the public from 6 to 10 p.m. daily through Oct. 31, a project of the Youth Action organization of the Outagamie chapter of the March of Dimes.

Salesman sentenced for bribery, perjury

OSHKOSH — A chemical company salesman was sentenced for bribery and perjury today amid references to declining standards of ethics throughout the country.

Circuit Court Judge Edmund P. Arpin imposed sentence on Burt Ische, a salesman for Del Chemical Co., pleaded guilty to 15 counts of bribery and one count of perjury. The charges were consolidated here from Jefferson, Dodge and Winnebago counties.

Arpin noted that Ische was "just one person caught in the web of declining ethical standards." The judge then sentenced him to nine months in the Winnebago County Jail beginning Nov. 5, with work release privilege, ordered a fine of $5,000 and put Ische on probation for five years to the state Department of Health and Social Services. Ische may be transferred to a jail closer to his place of employment. The fine is to be paid during the probation period.

The salesman was charged on the basis of testimony that arose from the John Doe investigation into business transactions between chemical companies, their salesmen and public employees. The investigation is being conducted by Circuit Judge William Crane of Oshkosh.

The bribery complaints involve giving U.S. savings bonds to an employee of the Dodge County Highway Department and the chief operator of the City of Jefferson waste water treatment plant, and giving U.S. currency to the street foremen of the City of Waterloo in Jefferson County.

The perjury complaint against Ische said he had denied under oath that in the last six years he had ever given any governmental purchasing agent cash to induce, influence or encourage the purchase of Del Chemical products.

The recommended sentence was negotiated in several meetings between Ische and Justice Department agents. Asst. Atty. Gen. Grant C. Johnson said three factors entered into the decision to recommend the jail term: the seriousness of the offenses, the deterrent factor and the defendant's cooperation.

Johnson said the practice of bribing public officials has "a very chilling effect on the citizens' faith in government." He said the severity of the sentence would induce others who might engage in similar activities to think again. He noted that although a much longer jail term could have been imposed, Ische did cooperate with agents in giving information.

Ische could have been sentenced to a $5,000 fine and five years in prison for perjury, and $1,000 fines and five years in prison for each count of bribery.

Ische's attorney, Marvin Margolis of Milwaukee, also had comments for the court. He said the problem facing Ische was the same as that facing the entire country: "a question of morality in all levels of government." Margolis said Ische was led to believe that what he was doing was right, when in fact it wasn't. He noted Ische had no prior criminal record.

Ische is the 10th person to receive a jail sentence as the result of the John Doe, according to Atty. Gen. Robert Warren. As a result of the investigation to date, four chemical salesmen have been convicted of giving bribes or perjury, and 12 public employees have been convicted of either receiving bribes or perjury, Warren said.

Additionally, three corporations have been convicted of bribing public employees and those three corporations and two others have been enjoined as a public nuisance from bribing public officials in the state of Wisconsin.

Fines and costs against the defendants total $63,650 on 82 felony count convictions and other court actions.

School talks reach impasse

Negotiators for the Appleton public schools and the Appleton Maintenance and Custodial Employees Union Local No. 73 have reached an impasse and have asked the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission to intervene.

Kay Hutchison, WERC mediator, said the commission has set an initial mediation session for 4 p.m. Nov. 13 in Morgan Administration Building. The two sides reportedly have been negotiating since last April.

The current contract expires Dec. 31, 1973. There are about 90 persons in the local, serving 19 schools and Morgan.

will continue. He revealed a few trade secrets that might answer colleagues who, including those who criticize, envy his success in getting his materials printed — and incidentally having his name mentioned in print or over the airwaves.

He offered two rules: say something newsworthy and use good timing.

On the subject of timing, he pointed out that since the Middle East war broke out, he has said little on defense matters. The reason, he explained, is that the major news organizations headquartered in Washington are highly specialized. Reporters who write about defense matters are busy writing about the war and its military implications in this country.

An Aspin release on defense spending probably would be lost in the shuffle.

Saying something newsworthy isn't as difficult as some congressmen and their staffs seem to feel. Aspin said much of the material he uses is right under their noses.

"An awful lot is from published sources," he said. He said government publications are "a gold mine" of information upon which to build an issue.

The Business-Commerce Daily Bulletin, which every congressman receives, lists government contracts up for bidding. "You can tell what looks fishy, and then you start looking around," he said.

Government Accounting Office reports also are available to all congressmen. The Pentagon is required to publish Selected Acquisition Reports (SARS) and these are distributed to armed services committee members. "There is more stuff that we haven't had time to look at," among the "millions of reports" he said the law requires the Pentagon to issue.

"It would be easier in other agencies," he added, since others — under the jurisdiction of other congressional committees — are less likely to be hampered by security restrictions on information.

Hebert recently accused Aspin of "sloppy demagoguery" and inaccuracies in his news releases.

Aspin admits there is a risk of becoming a demagogue, but says he recognizes and seeks to avoid it. He attributed Hebert's charges to a belief by the chairman that there is an "attitude of anti-militarism sweeping the country."

Aspin says there isn't. He also disagrees with Hebert that the 5 percent defense authorization cut was dangerous or irresponsible.

A demagogue, he said, might seek to ride a tide of anti-militarism. But Aspin said he hasn't advocated a defense budget cut of 30 percent, such as was advocated by Sen. George McGovern.

"If there were a feeling of rampant anti-militarism running across the country, that would be a very popular idea," he said. "It's not."

this date one year ago and 31 for the entire previous record year of 1968.

Deaths of 12 persons, including two motorcycle riders, in weekend accidents raised the state's 1973 traffic toll to 925, compared with 944 on this date last year.

Mary Jo Prem, 14, of rural Lodi, and Elroy W. Little, 37, of Iron River, were killed in separate accidents Sunday when the bicycles they were riding were struck by cars.

Miss Prem died in an accident on a Lodi street, and Little was killed on U.S. 2 near Iron River in Bayfield County.

Marcelino Garcia, 66, of Two Rivers, was killed late Sunday night when struck by a car as he crossed a Two Rivers street.

Ronald Elliott, 24, rural Wittenberg, and Conrad Yenter, 37, Galloway, died Sunday when their cars collided on Wisconsin 49, about three miles south of Elderon in Marathon County.

Mrs. Sylvia Napieralski, 57, Milwaukee, was fatally injured Sunday when the car she was in collided with another on Milwaukee's Southwest side.

Mark Sackatook, nine months, Neopit, was killed Saturday in a one-car accident on a town road north of Gresham in Shawano County.

Roger Benter, 24, Beaver Dam, was killed Sunday when his car crashed along Dodge County Trunk G south of Beaver Dam.

A one-car crash along Wisconsin 22 about two miles west of Gillett claimed the life of Alfred Bergner Jr., 18, Pulcifer.

Lori Flynn, 19, rural Elkhorn, died early Saturday when a car she was in crashed with a pickup truck along Wisconsin 15-11 in Walworth County.

Two other persons died of injuries suffered in earlier accidents. Paul Midman, 13, East Troy, died at Waukesha Memorial Hospital Sunday of injuries received Oct. 19 when a car hit the bicycle he was riding north of East Troy. Earl Tremel, 55, Wausau, died Saturday of injuries suffered in a two-car accident near Wausau Oct. 14.

abide by the terms of the plea bargain, "but I've indicated I would not go contrary to the recommendations," he said.

The five men placed on five years probation have the entire term of their probation to pay the fines.

The two Appleton girls told police they were picked up by the members as they hitchhiked on E. College Avenue in Appleton the night of Feb. 25.

They said they were held captive more than eight hours in area taverns and at Wysocky's Little Chute home. The girls said they were repeatedly raped at an east side tavern in Little Chute.

The girls were found by police after they escaped from the home early Feb. 26.

Thirteen members were arrested but charges against one defendant were reduced by Pfiffner several weeks ago for lack of sufficient evidence.

Trial was to have started at 9 a. m. today. Eighty-four potential jurors were in the courtroom. While they waited, Ensley, Herring and defense attorneys Allen Eisenberg of Milwaukee and Allan Cain of Appleton huddled.

At one point, the two Appleton girls and their parents along with Sheriff Calvin Spice met with Herring and Ensley. Spice indicated displeasure with the bargain.

School policy panel may ease negotiations

A joint administrator-teacher committee that is the teachers' hope for more influence in classroom policy decision-making has been relatively inactive since it was formed last January, but it may serve as a safety valve for upcoming teacher contract negotiations.

The committee, agreed to by the board of education and the Appleton Education Association in last year's negotiations, was expected to pick up certain unresolved negotiation items relating to curriculum decision making.

However, the committee met only once during the year — last June — and members said they weren't clear on what the role or responsibilities of the committee were. James Westphal, director of academic affairs and one of four administrative representatives on the committee, said he understood it was to deal with "issues too sticky or too hot to handle" in the negotiations setting, but rather in a more relaxed, less stuff committee setting.

John Wildermuth, an Appleton High School-West teacher and spokesman for the four teachers on the joint group, said he also understood that the committee had this type of role, but that to date no such issues had been brought to it.

He said the committee was "just getting off the ground," as teachers were still preparing for their involvement in a joint group. A questionnaire on what teachers believe the committee should take up will be distributed soon.

Wildermuth said he didn't believe the committee could function until this background work had been accomplished. Also, he said, items could come out of upcoming teacher contract talks that the committee could take on.

Appleton teacher negotiators aren't saying whether they will re-introduce the issue of teacher influence in curriculum decision-making into the upcoming talks. But Dennis Herring, AEA legal counsel, said that would depend on whether the joint committee were active and able to handle the issues.

There is a nationwide concern among teachers about their role in decision making. George Croy, AEA president, said, for example, the role of teachers' aides must be clarified since the growing use of them raises questions not only about the quality of education, but of teacher job security.

Some boards of education apparently are trying to place aides in charge of classrooms. Appleton has — less costly than teachers — increased its use of aides, but administrators say they are used only in the role of assisting teachers, particularly when large groups of youngsters are involved. Croy doesn't necessarily see a problem now in Appleton. "I think we've had fairly good luck in many instances," he said of board-teacher-administration cooperation on curriculum decisions.

But, citing the national trend of unilateral board decision-making, he added that "we want to be prepared for that change if it does come to Appleton."

Schools open for parents

KIMBERLY — National Education Week will be observed with open houses at various district schools this week.

From 7:30 to 9 p. m. today Kimberly West Side School and Janssen School, Combined Locks, will be open for visits, and at the same time Tuesday, Kimberly Elementary, Junior High School and Ryan School, Combined Locks, will be open for visits. The senior high school can be visited Wednesday from 7:30 to 9 p. m.

Each school plans to have parents go through a program similar to that being carried out daily by their child. Persons unable to make the open houses may visit individual classes anytime during the week and talk with teachers. The Kimberly Education Association and board of education are cooperating in the venture.

discriminatory and would force beer drinkers to pay the higher tavern price after 9 p. m.

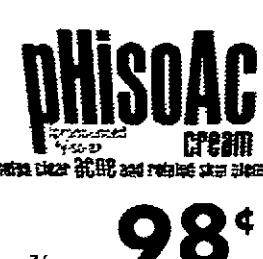

A motion to reconsider the original council action approving the curfew, however, was defeated.

Most members of the welfare and ordinance committee, who originally opposed the curfew when it was set at 9 p. m. on weekdays but 6 p. m. on Sundays, supported the move when it came to the council with a uniform 9 p. m. curfew hour.

Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd), who moved for reconsideration of the issue last week even though he supported the change two weeks earlier, said it would give those who hadn't been heard in the earlier debate a chance to speak out.

"I'm sure this is not the last we're going to hear of these," said Kalata, as the welfare and ordinance committee reviewed complaints from a resident and the supermarket operator.

Congress may act by Tuesday member special prosecution force, announced that the team was determined to carry on under the mantle of Justice Department and would show for work Tuesday without Cox. But whether the force will be allowed to gain apparently is up to Bork, who is to announce the future of the Watergate by Tuesday.

There were reports of possible mass resignations at the shaken Justice Department.

Outside of government, AFL-CIO President George Meany was reported to demand the President's resignation or impeachment and seek support from his 13.4-million-member union for a congressional lobbying campaign.

Harold Miller, president of the 100-member United Mine Workers of America, telegraphed House Speaker Carl Albert that "the American people had enough" and that Nixon should be impeached if he refuses to resign.

The Ripon Society, an organization of rural Republicans which supported him in his 1968 and 1972 presidential campaigns, called for immediate commencement of impeachment proceedings.

But for the fact that these acts were committed by a president, they would constitute criminal contempt of "obstruction of justice," the society said. "When committed by a president, they constitute an impeachable offense."

The president of the American Bar Association, Chesterfield Smith, urged Congress to re-establish the office of special prosecutor. Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, and Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., said they were in favor of such legislation.

Across the nation, calls for impeachment mingled with cries of amazement in emotional outpouring of reaction in Americans. Switchboards at Western Union offices and local newspapers tried blinking within minutes of Nixon's announcement that Cox had been fired.

And, outside the White House, the small weekend quiet was shattered by artists spontaneously demonstrating in support of sidewalk pickets who held placards reading "Honk for impeachment."

Justice Department stumbling for way out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crippled at the top and stunned throughout, the Justice Department is stumbling for a way out of its gravest upheaval in a crisis-ridden year.

Acting Atty. Gen. Robert H. Bork sought first to determine how to handle the Watergate prosecution thrust in his hands by presidential order.

The decision, which he promises to announce Tuesday, may influence the scores of department employees considering resigning in support of Elliot L. Richardson and William D. Ruckelshaus.

Richardson quit as attorney general rather than obey President Nixon's order to fire special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. Ruckelshaus was fired as his deputy for defying the same command.

They felt to fire the special prosecutor would violate a pledge of independence made to Cox and the Senate.

Bork then became acting attorney general, fired Cox and kept his reasons to himself.

Top-level conferences occupied Bork and a number of department officials Sunday and were expected to continue today, though a government holiday allowed most employees the day off.

Richardson was said to be "deeply disappointed" at the turn of events that forced him out of the office he had held only five months and the administration he had served from the beginning.

He spent Sunday playing tennis with friends and sorting out the thoughts he planned to discuss publicly, probably at a news conference Tuesday.

Richardson was seeking to dissuade several department officials intent upon resigning, said a Richardson friend.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen reportedly was among those considering a resignation as he faced the prospect of pursuing a Watergate investigation with White House records declared off-limits. Cox considered those records vital.

Petersen had complained and seriously considered resigning when the investigation was taken from him and given to Cox. But Richardson persuaded him to stay and won his esteem with assurances that criminal investigations would be free of political influence.

Experts believe tape summaries would not be acceptable to court

By DUDLEY LEHEW
Associated Press Writer

Would anything but the Watergate tapes themselves or verbatim transcripts be accepted in court as evidence in any subsequent prosecutions?

Two legal experts say "no" unless the tapes cease to exist.

Law scholars who were asked the question following the weekend's Watergate developments agreed that a summary of the tapes would be rejected under the "best of evidence" rule.

Abraham Goldstein, dean of the Yale Law School, and an authority on evidence, said the "best of evidence" rule applies in criminal cases. In the Watergate matter, the best evidence is the tapes themselves, he said.

But if, for example, the tapes were destroyed and the summary was the only source of information, then it might be legally admissible as evidence, Goldstein said.

The issue of summary vs. transcript vs. tape arose after President Nixon announced an agreement whereby the Senate Watergate committee would have limited access to tape information.

The White House use of the word

"summary" in describing the form in which the information would be given the committee prompted chairman Sam Ervin, D-N.C., to reply "I would not accept anybody's summary of anything." Ervin later contacted the White House, however, and said he was advised that "my interpretation of the agreement is identical with that of the White House."

It still was not clear late Sunday just what form the information from the tapes would take. Presidential adviser Melvin R. Laird said there will be "the actual words that were used in the particular conversations as they relate to this particular case."

A White House source said "some dialogue" doubtless would be included but other sections might be paraphrased.

Harold Korn, a Columbia Law School expert on evidence, said a summary "would raise the hearsay problem because it doesn't purport to be anything but a summary."

Korn agreed with Goldstein about the inadmissibility of summaries as evidence. "Attempts to prove contents of writing by something other than the writing itself are not admissible," he said, and this applies to tape recordings. Tapes and transcripts can be legally admitted into evidence provided they are authentic, law scholars say. A major guideline in proving authenticity is continuous possession.

"There's a bit of a problem there because of H.R. Haldeman taking the tapes home overnight," Korn said. "On balance, however, I suspect that the tapes would be admitted."

Goldstein said, "Haldeman's handling of the tapes might weigh toward credibility, but not toward admissibility."

Haldeman, who resigned as chief of the White House Staff April 30, was allowed by Nixon to take certain tapes home prior to his appearance before the committee.

The tapes are recordings of conversations that went on in Nixon's office. Their existence was unknown until disclosed in testimony before the committee. The investigators have sought the tapes to see if they support the testimony of various witnesses, including John W. Dean III. Dean has testified that Nixon knew of the coverup of the Watergate break-in.

News in brief

Four laughing boys set man afire

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A homeless derelict who was doused with gasoline and set afire by four laughing teenagers managed to name one of his attackers before he died, police say. Charles Scales, 38, was sleeping in an alley behind an abandoned building Saturday night with two other men when the boys, all about 15, poured gasoline on him and lit it, police said Sunday. Officers said the youths also set fire to Emmett Sprattling and tried to burn the other man, who ran away. The victims and the attackers were black, a police spokesman said. No arrests had been made late Sunday.

MADRID (AP) — More than 190 persons are known to have died and another 300 to 400 are feared buried under tons of rubble or swept out to sea as a result of flash flooding in southern Spain, police said. Authorities said rainfall at times as heavy as 15 inches in a period of six hours trapped many of the dead in their beds Friday. Practically all of the victims were believed to have lived in either Puerto Lumbreras, population of 8,000, or La Rabita, a fishing village of 2,000, in Granada Province.

Government marines, attacking from assault boats, have retaken Phum Daun Mao, a village across the Mekong River from Kompong Cham, the military command said today. Government forces have been fighting to expand their territory around the district capital 47 miles northwest of Phnom Penh since they repulsed an insurgent assault on the city in early September. In Phnom Penh, the government prepared for a high-level cabinet reshuffle, but the new government is expected to retain most of the official from the previous cabinet.

LONDON (AP) — Twenty young girls were injured Sunday when a wall of a balcony collapsed at London airport during the arrival of an American pop group. None of the injuries were critical, authorities said. An airport spokesman said the wall gave way under the pressure of thousands of teen-agers awaiting the arrival of the Osmond Brothers. The collapse sent a ton of metal and concrete onto youngsters on the ground floor.

Others victims fell from the balcony.

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist party leader Edward Gierk today announced he will freeze food prices for the fourth straight year in an effort to hold the tide against spiraling food costs. The freeze will affect all basic foodstuffs such as meat, bread, dairy products and sugar, he said in a nationally televised speech. Gierk came to power three years ago after a wave of bloody riots protesting food prices forced party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka from power.

Paper plates make halloween faces

BY CAPPY DICK

As a decoration for Halloween at your house, make a mobile Halloween face that will turn in the currents of air in the room. Hang it by a

Rotate on thread thread from a high place such as the top of a doorway. The face can be made from two paper plates. Cut facial features-eyes, nose and mouth-in each plate. Cover these openings by pasting orange tissue paper over them inside each plate. Teeth can be indicated by drawing lines on the tissue with black crayon. The outside of the faces (actually the outside bottoms of the plates) can be painted any color you prefer with poster paints. Staple the rims of the plates together (see Figure 2). Before you do this make two ears from construction paper and staple these between the plates when you staple the rims. Attach a thread and hang the face in a place where the room's air currents will cause it to turn slowly. Tomorrow, how to make a poster of amusing musical notes!

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dr. Ronald Dante, a nightclub hypnotist and former husband of actress Lana Turner, was denied a claim for half of the money she earned during their three-year marriage.

Court decision in favor of Miss Turner. Dante had claimed the money was community property. Dante was the seventh husband of the actress. They were married in May 1969 and separated in November of that year. He sued for divorce and the marriage was dissolved on June 26, 1972.

Was I crazy to think enough people in Appleton would want to see the world's best actors in the world's greatest plays?

Was I crazy?

The skeptics said I was. A is for Art, B is for Bankruptcy, reads the alphabet of the cynics. Give 'em Corn. Blood. Porno. More bang for their buck.

I disagreed. So did Katharine Hepburn and Laurence Olivier, Edward Albee, Harold Pinter, Tom O'Horgan, John Frankenheimer and scores of other marvelous talents. Brilliant actors, writers and directors who lovingly transformed eight contemporary classics into motion pictures that make you laugh and cry, think and feel.

We said the audience is there for works of genius—and we've been proven right.

Hundreds of cities and towns across America—from Anaheim to Annapolis—are buying out our subscription series.

But not here. SHAME.

Only a precious few of you have signed up. To you my thanks—and my regrets.

Because if there aren't enough people in this community who deeply care about transcendent films that touch the heart and soul—then I will simply cancel the series here and return your money.

A sad distinction for your town.

And a sad loss too of a new cultural asset—a National Theatre on Film—that would have graced your lives for years to come.

IF YOU DO BELIEVE, TAKE HEART.

For these next few days, you can get subscription tickets at the box office of your local American Film Theatre. It's listed below.

So if you believe, flog friends and neighbors down to the theatre and sign them up.

Or else it's no show. Will you be there when the lights go out? I hope so. I think so. I pray so.

Weather forecast

Sunny, milder weather is forecast for most of the nation Monday. Showers are expected in the Pacific Northwest and for eastern Florida and the Georgia coast.

More sunshine predicted

Fox Cities can sit back and soak up the sunshine for a few more days, according to the U.S. Weather Service in Green Bay.

Tuesday should be sunny and warm with a high temperature in the low 70s. Winds will be southerly at 10 to 20 miles per hour.

Tonight's temperatures should reach into the lower 40s for fair conditions. Winds will be southerly at 5 to 10 miles per hour.

Chance of showers is predicted for Wednesday. Lows should be in the 40s and highs in the low 70s.

The Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. reported the Appleton area had a high of 64 and a low of 48. No precipitation was recorded.

At midmorning, the barometer was steady at 30.29 and winds were southerly at 10. Relative humidity was 70 per cent and the dew point was 44 degrees.

Sunset today at 5:59 p.m. Sunrise tomorrow at 7:18 a.m. Moonrise

Police & fire beat

Chris C. Bramm, 16, route 7, Appleton, escaped serious injury about 8:30 a.m. Saturday when his pickup truck overturned on Outagamie County Trunk E near Holland Road, four miles north of Little Chute.

He was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by ambulance with a bump on the head and a cut leg.

County police said Bramm, who was eastbound, lost control of his truck when he reached for something on the floor.

HORTONVILLE—Jennie Watson, 78, Hortonville, suffered a minor eye injury in a three-car accident on U.S. 45 near here Friday afternoon.

Outagamie County police said she was in a car driven by Inace Sauerhammer, 56, Hortonville. Other cars involved in the accident were driven by Jane E. Kampf, 34, 1347 W. Washington St., Appleton, and James R. Polley, 20, 609 S. Pearl St., New London.

tomorrow at 4:41 a.m. New Moon on Oct. 25

The barely visible "star" that has been between Venus and sun in the past week is the planet Mercury. On November 10 Mercury will pass directly between the Earth and the sun.

Mr. J. Oliver Finds Way To Help Shrink Painful Swelling Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

...caused by inflammation and infection.

Junction City, Kansas.—Mr. J. Oliver writes: "I couldn't get relief. Then I bought Preparation H. I surely recommend it. It's worth its weight in gold."

(Note: Doctors' tests have proved Preparation H actually helps shrink swelling of hemorrhoidal tissues caused by inflammation. It's so effective that in many cases the first applications give prompt, temporary relief from pain and itching in such tissues. There's no other formula like Preparation H.)

Impeachment could begin Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) —Impeachment of the President, an almost unthinkable alternative a few days ago, is suddenly a war cry for some and on the lips of many after the weekend firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. Members of Congress, away from Washington for the Veterans Day holiday, expressed shock and dismay at the rapid-fire developments that left President Nixon in legal limbo and the attorney general and his deputy out of their jobs. At least 28 members of the House, where impeachment proceedings must begin, supported initiation of steps to remove Nixon from office. Most were liberal Democrats, but dozens of others in both House and Senate, including some ranking Republicans, said impeachment would now be given serious consideration. Sen. Daniel K. Inouye today called on Nixon to resign, saying Americans "have suffered enough" and "must be spared this new pain and trauma." In a speech prepared for the AFL-CIO convention in Miami Beach, Inouye thus became the first member of the Senate Watergate committee to urge Nixon to step down. Another member of the committee Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., said impeachment proceedings probably would begin against Nixon "but I can not see them meeting with great success." The first formal steps are expected to come Tuesday when Congress returns from the long weekend. Several impeachment resolutions are likely to be introduced, and Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr. of the House Judiciary Committee will be asked to launch an inquiry to determine if grounds for impeachment exist.

White House aides Melvin R. Laird and J. Fred Buzhardt sought to dismiss the talk, predicting that Congress would await the outcome of a White House compromise plan to release partial transcripts of Watergate-related tape recordings authenticated by a senior senator. It was that plan that precipitated the latest Watergate crisis when special prosecutor Archibald Cox rejected it, saying a summary could not be used as evidence in court and his acceptance would block further efforts to obtain White House documents he needs to make his case. President Nixon then ordered Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson to fire his special prosecutor, and Richardson resigned rather than comply. The job fell to Richardson's deputy, William D. Ruckelshaus, who also refused and was fired. Solicitor General Robert H. Bork, No. 3 in command at the Justice Department, thus became acting attorney general and fired Cox. The Watergate special prosecution force was dissolved. Nixon is under federal court order to surrender the tapes to U.S. District

Judge John J. Sirica for the judge's inspection and decision on whether to turn them over to a grand jury as evidence. Sirica's order was upheld by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and Nixon declined to seek a Supreme Court review before the order went into effect at the end of the week. Sirica, who is out of the city until Tuesday, directed his staff to research alternatives for his next step, which could include holding the President in contempt of court. Meanwhile, a spokesman for Cox's

Watergate story still has ability to shock nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans already stunned by tales of wiretapping and burglaries, of "dirty tricks" and "plumbers units," found this weekend that the Watergate story still has the ability to shock.

In less than two days, with events tumbling over one another, the attorney general resigned and the deputy attorney general was fired; the special Watergate prosecutor was discharged after he clashed head on with the President; and there were new cries for impeachment.

The first development came Friday night when President Nixon proposed a compromise on the release of White House tapes pertaining to the Watergate case and sought both by special prosecutor Archibald Cox and the Senate Watergate Committee.

The President, citing the doctrine of executive privilege, previously had refused to give up the tapes, saying it was up to him to decide whether to release them.

Now, after mounting pressure for some sort of settlement, Nixon said he would prepare a summary of the tapes to give to U.S. Dist. Court Judge John J. Sirica, who had ordered the President to give him the nine tapes involved in the dispute.

The President said he had agreed to let U.S. Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., listen to the tapes to verify the accuracy of the summary. At the same time, Nixon ordered Cox to halt his efforts to get the complete recordings.

Sens. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., and Howard Baker, R-Tenn., the senior members of the Watergate committee, had agreed to the plan, Nixon said.

Cox did not. He said Friday night that if he agreed to the President's conditions, he would be violating "my solemn pledge to the Senate and the country."

During the day Saturday, problems started building. Sens. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, and Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., two other members of the Watergate committee, said they hadn't been consulted about the compromise.

Saturday afternoon, Ervin indicated there may have been some confusion about just what Nixon planned to give the judge. He said it was his understanding that the President would provide partial, verbatim transcripts — not summaries.

Saturday night, Ervin said he'd been in touch with the White House and was told "my interpretation of the agreement is identical with that of the White House."

In the meantime, Cox held a news conference and reaffirmed his intention to fight for the tapes. He said he might "seek an order why the respondent (Nixon) should not be judged in contempt."

Rumors started flying. Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson was ready to resign. Nixon was going to fire Cox. Just before 7:30 p.m. CDT, the rumors were confirmed.

Nixon fired Cox and abolished the prosecutor's Watergate task force. Richardson — who appointed Cox — resigned rather than discharge him. Deputy Atty. Gen. William D. Ruckelshaus also refused to fire Cox and was, in turn, dismissed. Solicitor General Robert H. Bork became acting attorney general.

Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Richardson "felt obliged to resign" because he believed Nixon's order to Cox violated an understanding with Congress that the prosecutor would get a free hand in the Watergate probe. Ziegler said the government's Watergate investigations would continue "with thoroughness and vigor."

Reaction was swift. Ervin said it was "a great tragedy" that Cox no longer was in charge of the investigation. The chairman of the House Republican Conference, Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, said Nixon's action would bring on a serious impeachment effort.

A barrage of Democrats called for impeachment and they were joined by some Republicans. Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said Nixon's act was "sufficient evidence" for the House to consider impeachment proceedings.

While the controversy swirled on, the President spent Sunday in his office, meeting with top advisers and keeping in communication with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, in Moscow for talks with Soviet leaders.

Bork, taking over a Justice Department that had seen three attorneys general in 18 months, met with top department officials, then said he will announce his decision on the future course of the Watergate investigation on Tuesday.

Egypt, Israel agree to end shooting today

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —U.N. officials said today they were relying on the "good faith" of the Israelis and Arabs to put a cease-fire into effect in the Mideast.

The U.N. Security Council adopted a cease-fire resolution worked out by the Soviets and the Americans. The truce was to go into effect at 11:50 p.m. CDT, 12 hours after the adoption of the resolution, U.N. officials said.

Both Israel and Egypt said they would accept the cease-fire along the current battle lines, but there was no word from Syria. Presumably the Syrians will go along with the Egyptians. Jordan also will go along, a high source in Amman said, but Iraq said it would not observe the cease-fire. However, the Iraqi position was not expected to seriously affect the military situation.

The immediate test appeared to be whether the Egyptian, Syrian and Israeli forces, engaged in a bitter war since Oct. 6, could now stop fighting. The Israelis have taken more Syrian territory than they held before the war started, and a chunk of Egyptian territory west of the Suez Canal. The Egyptians having recaptured some of the Sinai peninsula occupied by Israel since 1967.

"President (Anwar) Sadat, as supreme commander of the armed forces, has ordered the General Command to cease fire at the deadline set by the U.N. Security Council, provided the enemy abides by it," Cairo radio said.

The Israeli government announcement accepting the call also set conditions, insisting Israel would continue its refusal to withdraw from the Jordanian, Syrian and Egyptian lands captured in 1967 unless the Arabs agree to a peace treaty.

The announcement was read as part of a regular afternoon newscast and did not specify whether Sadat also accepted the other two main provisions of the resolution: peace negotiations and implementation of the long-debated 1967 U.N. resolution calling for Israeli withdrawal from captured Arab lands in return for secure and recognized borders.

But it said the Egyptian leader has received "assurances" Sunday from Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev relayed by the Soviet ambassador to Cairo.

As the deadline approached, tough fighting was reported near the Golan Heights and on the western bank of the Suez Canal.

Syria said its troops were locked in a fierce battle with Israelis for control of a strategic position on Mt. Hermon overlooking the Golan Heights battleground.

Cairo said Egyptian infantry and tanks were attacking the Israeli invasion force on the western side of the canal in an apparent attempt to push them back as far as possible before the cease-fire hour.

States' GOP chairmen worry but back Nixon

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Republican state chairmen say President Nixon's latest action in the Watergate tapes dispute will cause new problems for the chief executive, maybe even an impeachment move.

But the GOP officials oppose such a move and say Nixon was within his rights to fire special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

An Associated Press survey showed the party leaders were surprised by Nixon's dismissal of Cox and dismayed over the departure from the administration of Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson and Deputy Atty. Gen. William D. Ruckelshaus.

Many chairmen said they regretted that the problem had arisen and that a compromise worked out by Nixon had not been accepted by Cox, but argued that the President had the power to act as he did.

"He's the boss," said Kansas GOP chairman Jack Ranson. He said talk of impeachment had been circulating for months "on the part of certain elements of the Democratic party and the news media," but predicted the rumors would die down after a while.

Harry Rosenzweig, Arizona Republican chairman, said, "I just wish a couple of days would pass without some shattering bulletin." He said Richardson and Ruckelshaus were "outstanding public servants and we needed them."

William Barrett, the Nebraska GOP chairman, defended the President. "I still feel Mr. Nixon is right in refusing the tapes. He has to protect his office. It's not only his privilege; it's his duty."

Many officials were too surprised to say much. "I don't have too much reaction," commented New Jersey Republican chairman John J. Spoltore. "I was shocked when I read it."

Asked about impeachment, Spoltore said: "I wouldn't know on that. I don't know enough about it."

Delaware GOP chairman Herman Brown said Sunday afternoon he didn't want to comment until he had further information; North Carolina Republican chairman Frank Rouse answered phone calls for comment with a simple, "No;" Ohio GOP chairman Kent McGough asserted: "I don't know what to say."

David Green, Oregon Republican chairman, said, "I'm simply at a loss for words. All I can do is sit here and wait for the next development." Minnesota Republican chairman Rudy Boschwitz said, "I really don't know what to make of it. You've heard of that play, 'Stop the World, I Want to Get Off.' That's how I feel right now."

Hijackers threaten hostages

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Four Tupamaro guerrillas who hijacked an Argentine jetliner in a bid to get to Cuba threatened to begin killing their five hostages today unless they got a smaller plane to take them out of the country.

Bolivian President Hugo Banzer refused the smaller plane but sent word to the terrorists that he would grant them the necessary papers to leave Bolivia if they released the hostages. He said if they made any attempt against the lives of the hostages the hijackers would be killed.

The hijacked Aerolineas Argentinas Boeing 737 cannot take off from the small airfield in the Bolivian city of Yacuiba, 900 miles southeast of La Paz. The plane is surrounded by heavily armed Bolivian soldiers and policemen, who have refused to provide food or drinks to the plane since it landed.

The four hijackers — two men and two young women — released 40 passengers and crewmembers Sunday. But they held as hostages the pilot, the copilot, a congressman, a Frenchman and another passenger whose nationality was not known.

The Boeing 737 was on a domestic flight between Buenos Aires and Salta, near the Bolivian border, when it was commandeered Saturday. The kidnapers forced the pilot to land at Tucuman, in northern Argentina, and demanded fuel to fly to Lima, Peru, from where they intended to proceed to Cuba.

But Argentine President Juan D. Peron refused to negotiate with them and the plane had to take off with its fuel tanks almost dry, to Yacuiba, close to the Argentine border.

Year round DST seen as answer to fuel crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospect of widespread fuel shortages has given new currency to an old idea — year round daylight savings time. But it's not likely anyone will be able to sell it in time for the coming winter.

An extra hour of daylight at the end of the short winter days would cut down on the use of lighting, resulting in "substantial energy savings," says Rep. Silvio O. Conte, R-Mass., the latest legislative champion of year-round DST.

But there are those, including the Nixon administration, who disagree, making passage of a year-round DST bill during the current session of Congress doubtful. The bill certainly will not be approved before everybody sets their clocks back one hour on Oct. 28.

The Department of Transportation recently concluded that "the institution of year-round daylight savings time would reduce nationwide demand for electricity by not more than one to two per cent."

DOT said, the demand for electricity is principally dependent on electrical gadgets which are operated regardless of how bright the sun is shining.

The nation went to year-round DST in an effort to save electricity during World War II, but DOT noted that that was before electric toothbrushes and pencil sharpeners.

Great Britain tried it for three years ending in 1971 and found a reduction of nearly four per cent in the number of serious traffic accidents. But DOT said there is insufficient data to enable it to determine whether similar results could be achieved here.

The Department of Justice says there's no way of telling what effect a later sunset would have on crime, although it suggested that would-be felons might simply postpone their activities until a darker hour.

The problem of sending children to school while it's still dark, could be eliminated by starting classes an hour or so later, DOT said.

The controversy traditionally has pitted city dwellers against country folk. Urbanites like the idea of walking or driving home in the relative safety of daylight, while farmers complain that DST, particularly during the winter months, forces them to do their morning chores in pitch darkness.

Arabs, Israelis skeptical

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Many Arabs and Israelis were skeptical about the U.N. call for an in-place cease-fire today in the Middle East war.

The governments of Israel and Egypt said they would abide by the cease-fire. But some residents of the two countries were skeptical.

A columnist for the influential Israeli newspaper Maariv said the cease-fire was a "trap ... to prevent our victory, to rescue the Arab armies from the results of their evil attacks. Already it contains the danger of the next war."

People in Tel Aviv heard about the proposal on their way home from work. "On the one hand, I'm glad if the fighting stops," said Tami Rosenfeld, a government secretary. "But on the other hand, we said we will smash the enemy and we haven't done so yet. If things stop where they are, all our blood will have been spilled for nothing."

Arie Fried, who lost a leg in the 1967

Middle East war, said, "We have a cease-fire and we're holding their land. No peace comes. Then the Arabs start claiming we started this war and stole their land. Pretty soon the world starts believing that, and they get encouraged to go to war again. It's just a vicious circle."

In Egypt, many people said the action came too early.

"For Egypt to accept ceasefire now is to repeat the crisis of 1948," said Attia Masoud, the owner of a Cairo shoeshine parlor, who fought in the 1948 war. "In 1948 the Arabs accepted a cease-fire with Israel which gave the Jewish state a chance to get more arms and defeat the Arabs."

Hassan Abdel Rahman, a student, said, "We sacrificed thousands of our brothers and sons in 1967, and billions of pounds during this and the last war. Now it is ridiculous to accept a cease-fire before we are sure of the complete withdrawal of Israel."

Syrian officials had no immediate statement on the ceasefire, but they were expected to follow Egypt's example of acceptance.

In Damascus, the official state radio did not broadcast the news of the proposal.

Jordan, which has kept a low profile throughout the war although it's been a participant, also had no immediate official comment.

But Jordanians greeted the news with cautious optimism.

"We Jordanians have always wanted a cease-fire provided it led to a just solution," said Francis Hattar, a maintenance technician.

"If the Israelis have agreed already to (Egyptian) President (Anwar) Sadat's peace plan, then I see no reason why fighting should not stop tonight. But if they have not agreed to return immediately to the 1967 lines, the Arabs will have to fight them back to those lines."

Time running out on key bills

BY ARTHUR L. SRB
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — After engaging in little more than political shadow-boxing for three weeks, Wisconsin legislators entered the final scheduled week of the fall session today with fate of key bills still undecided.

Major items still before the lawmakers include campaign financing reform, legislative salary rollbacks, no-fault insurance, liberalized contraceptive legislation and a stronger anti-governmental secrecy measure.

Chances are lawmakers will be held to a standoff on the major proposals, according to at least one veteran legislator.

"The fall session so far has been a waste of time and I don't think the fourth week is going to be any better," said Sen. Fred Risser of Madison, Democratic minority leader and one of Gov. Patrick J. Lucey's key legislative lieutenants.

"The controversial issues have either been set aside for the time being or have been laid over until January," Risser noted. "I don't think we'll be taking much significant final action during the final week."

Other major legislative items pending would provide state screening of new or expanded health facilities, mandatory use of seat belts, a stronger cabinet form of government, Public Service Commission certification of energy suppliers and a mandatory two-year jail sentence for hard drug pushers.

The Senate last week passed and sent to the Assembly a bill to permit sale of contraceptive devices to anyone 18 years or older, regardless of marital status.

But backers feel the action probably came too late and that the measure will be held over along with hundreds of other proposals, until the January session.

Both houses during the past week reversed themselves and, instead of allowing many bills to die a natural death when the legislature adjourns Oct. 26, decided to hold them over until next year.

The net effect of these maneuvers was to carry over at least 800 proposals, 400 in each house, for consideration when the lawmakers return for what was expected to be a one-month budgetary review session in January.

Now, some legislators believe, the 1974 floor session could last three or four months.

Risser said he believed the inability or unwillingness of legislators to get down to business and take action on key bills is a result of "growing pains" the body is experiencing as it is transformed from a part-time to a full-time legislature.

MADISON — Legislators representing Fox River Valley and adjoining districts will provide a substantial portion of the majorities that will make possible the sponsorship of public bingo, according to preliminary recent roll calls in the assembly.

On a strategic test vote that had the effect of giving priority status to the pending bingo measure in the legislature's lower house, only two representatives of the northeastern Wisconsin area were recorded in opposition.

They were Reps. Gordon Bradley of Omro and R. A. Flintrop of Oshkosh.

disease were approved with the support of Sens. Chilsen of Wausau, Krueger of Merrill, LaFave of Oconto, Lorge of Bear Creek, Martin of White-law and Petri of Fond du Lac.

Opposing were Hollander of Rosendale and Steinhilber of Oshkosh.

The senate also supported a compromise measure that would remove contraceptives from the list of "indecent articles" in Wisconsin law and permit them to be sold to married persons or unmarried adults. Supporting were Chilsen, Martin and Steinhilber, in a preliminary vote, and opposing were Hollander, Krueger, LaFave, Lorge and Petri.

Parliamentary maneuvering on the controversial "no fault" automobile insurance bill, meanwhile, provided hints that the measure may be in difficulty.

DA protests firm's party for county officials

RICHLAND CENTER, Wis. (AP) — A district attorney has asked the Wisconsin attorney general to take action concerning a road contractor's annual party attended by county officials.

Dist. Atty. Edward J. Fink of Richland County, in correspondence quoted Sunday by the Milwaukee Journal, said: "In my opinion, attendance at this function might be found illegal if tested in a court of law, and most certainly smacks of impropriety."

The newspaper said more than 200 representatives of Richland, Sauk and Vernon counties have been invited to the Lake Delton dinner Tuesday in Sauk County.

The host was identified as Edward Kraemer and Sons Inc. of Plain. The Journal said the company president, Rudy Kraemer, declined to comment.

The company, employing an estimated 660 men, handles state and county road construction projects, and supplies gravel throughout western Wisconsin.

The invitation list was reported to contain sheriffs and their deputies, road commissioners, members of county boards of supervisors, aldermen and other municipal officials.

24 hour police protection for Calumet considered

CHILTON — Pros and cons were discussed at the first informational meeting held Thursday night at the courthouse concerning 24-hour police protection for Calumet County.

Chairman of the protection of persons and property committee, Carl Wilberscheid, New Holstein, told the group of local government officials and supervisors that the present committee and those before had considered around-the-clock protection.

Three cities had formally sent resolutions to the county board requesting the 24-hour protection and because it represented 15 to 20 per cent of the county's population, the informational meeting was scheduled.

There are now eight men in the county traffic department. Officers are on call when not on duty. The officers' homes are located throughout the county so that one of them should be able to reach the scene of an accident or emergency within 20 minutes or half hour, Wilberscheid said.

Often this would be less time than it would take an officer on duty to reach the same emergency if he were in some other part of the county at the time, he said.

Wilberscheid said if protection is requested from 3 to 7 a.m. it would require two men to a car which would make it equal to an eight hour shift. Total cost would be about $26,560 per year.

He noted that it was suggested that men from the sheriff's office travel the county at night, checking doors in villages and outlying areas. They would be available for all sheriff's calls and could serve as traffic officers during these hours.

A midnight to 8 a.m. shift with this kind of coverage could cost the county $36,000 per year.

Wilberscheid noted that it was his committee's opinion that the accident rate could not be reduced by any great amount, or that the incidence of crime be noticeably less, if there are police traveling during the hours in question.

Sheriff Ted Pagel said that for the past several months unmarked cars were patrolling high incident areas, but had to be cut back due to budget limitations. He felt a security patrol assisted by traffic patrol would curtail many incidents. "If you want to have a good law enforcement department, it's going to cost money. You get just what you put into it," he said.

Chief of Police Al Bartash of New Holstein said his force helps out the county quite a bit and consequently leaves New Holstein unprotected. "Their problem is our problem," he noted. "Our councilmen are putting the pressure on to stay in the city. Yet, when we get a call of an accident, staying away until the county boys get there could mean a life," he noted.

Chief of Police Emmery Farren of Kiel said his department got requests from three counties and felt that the 24-hour protection would help a great deal, especially in the southwestern part of the county.

Valley man is killed in 1-car crash

KAUKAUNA — An 18-year-old Wrightstown man was killed early today when his car missed a curve, struck a tree and disintegrated next to Outagamie County Trunk 22, one mile east of Kaukauna.

Dead on arrival at Kaukauna Community Hospital was Ronald J. Martzahl, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Martzahl, 364 Fair St. According to Coroner Bernard H. Kemps, Martzahl died from severe head and chest injuries in the 3 a.m. crash.

Police said Martzahl was driving alone in the 1964 model car and heading northeast on County 22 apparently at a high rate of speed. The vehicle skidded on the pavement and continued on the shoulder and through a ditch for more than 750 feet before smashing into a tree on the Norbert Schmidt farm, route 3, Kaukauna.

Schmidt was awakened by the crash and summoned authorities, who said the car's wreckage was strewn over a 100-foot area of the Schmidt property. Martzahl was pinned in the section of the auto which remained against the tree.

The victim, one of six Martzahl children, was a June graduate of Wrightstown High School and was employed by the Thilmany Pulp & Paper Co., Kaukauna. The body was released to the De Wane Funeral Home in Wrightstown.

The death was the 34th on county roads this year, compared with 19 on this date one year ago and 31 for the entire previous record year of 1968.

Deaths of 12 persons, including two motorcycle riders, in weekend accidents raised the state's 1973 traffic toll to 925, compared with 944 on this date last year.

Mary Jo Prem, 14, of rural Lodi, and Elroy W. Little, 37, of Iron River, were killed in separate accidents Sunday when the bicycles they were riding were struck by cars.

Miss Prem died in an accident on a Lodi street, and Little was killed on U.S. 2 near Iron River in Bayfield County.

Finance committee completes its review of county expenditures

BY DON CASTONIA

Post-Crescent staff writer

The finance committee completed its review of proposed 1974 Outagamie County expenditures Friday without really causing a ripple.

Recommended additions to departmental budgets totaled about $15,500, while recommended cuts amounted to $9,100.

The committee did, however, refer several other changes to the full board that also would affect county spending.

Revenues, along with recommended policies on revenue sharing funds and the health center settlement funds, will be reviewed with County Executive Alvin Woehler Tuesday night.

The cost involved in one recommendation has not yet been calculated. This is to raise the mileage allowance for employees using their own cars for county business from 10 cents to 12 cents a mile. The full board will have to act on the recommendation. Woehler noted that the mileage figure also is a bargaining point for several unions. He suggested that if the board goes along with raising the mileage fee a separate

Students, parents to trade places

MARION — The high school staff here has invited parents to exchange places with a son or daughter and follow his or her schedule of classes Thursday as a part of the local observance of National Education Week.

The parents of high school students will spend the entire day as students.

The purpose behind this approach for education week is twofold: Parents will be able to see for themselves the educational processes of schools in the '70s; it will provide a means of understanding, from personal observation, the emphasis of education for today as well as the student's responsibility for his own intellectual growth.

It is hoped that the exchange will encourage a deeper involvement on the part of parents to understand modern educational processes.

Details of the plan have been described by Principal Robert Peterson in a letter which was sent home with high school students.

Manawa zoning proposal defines eight districts and their functions

MANAWA — The City Council has been busy planning for the city's growth and reviewing proposed zoning ordinances and base maps presented by a planning specialist recently.

Paul J. Van Rooy from the Bureau of Community Services, Department of Local Affairs and Development (DLAD), Madison, explained the official document which was drawn in accordance with State Statute 62.23. The provisions would encompass health, safety, morals, comfort, prosperity and general welfare of the city.

The zoning document deals with dimensional requirements of lots and buildings height regulations, streets and parking.

Eight zoning districts, maps and land uses have been defined in the document: residential, two-family residence, mobile home district, commercial, industrial, park and open space, agriculture and planned unit development.

The residential and two-family residence districts are intended to provide a quiet, pleasant, and relatively spacious living area protected from traffic hazards and intrusion of incompatible land uses. The mobile home district includes the same elements of residential but also adds exclusive use for mobile homes with restrictions on use, height, yards, spacing of units, areas and utilities added.

The commercial district is intended to provide area for business and commercial needs of the city. Industrial district aims at those locations which include warehousing, light assembly industries and industries that normally include the use of heavy machinery. These industries may require outdoor storage areas for raw materials and/or finished products, provided such storage is enclosed by a suitable screen of fencing or vegetation.

The agricultural district is to help conserve good farming areas and prevent uncontrolled, uneconomical spread of residential development which would result in excessive costs to the community for premature provision

Board to view summer work at Embarrass

CLINTONVILLE — The district board of education will meet at 7 p.m. today at the Embarrass School to view the refurbishing and maintenance completed this summer. The regular board meeting will be at 7:45 p.m. at the Longfellow School.

The board will establish the tax levy under 1973 equalized valuations, as certified by the Wisconsin Department of Revenue, and notify clerks of the municipalities in the school district of the 1973 school tax due.

A letter will be read from Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, regarding his position on SB 659, which details student rights.

After the second reading and review of a board policy for exceptional teachers, the board will act on its adoption.

A review will be made of WIAA policy on conference realignment.

MANAWA — The Manawa Centennial Corporation was approved by resolution of the City Council last week to plan and supervise the centennial celebration for 1974.

Appointed to the board of directors were Robert E. Squires, Stewart Craig, Charles Okonski, M.G. Hales, Alice Binder, Melba Mortensen, Ken Groholski, George Jensen, Melvin Pethke, Leonard Goetz, Gordon Brown and Carol Diehl.

The nonprofit corporation will be headed by Squires with Craig serving as vice president, Okonski as secretary, and Hales as treasurer.

The group will meet officially on the fourth Thursday of every month at the Sturm Public Library at 7 p.m., with the next meeting scheduled for Thursday.

The council also approved a request for $1,000 towards the centennial history being compiled by Mrs. Evelyn Wegener.

The Futuræ Club is assisting Mrs. Wegener in the preparation of the book for publication. The book will cover 100 years of the people and events of Manawa and the Little Wolf Township. It will contain about 200 pages with 70

Grocery store owner denied liquor license

MANAWA — A grocery store owner was denied a combination liquor and beer license by the City Council last week. The vote was 5-2.

DuWayne Dobratz, owner of Lakeside Foods, had applied for the license with the intention of purchasing the Manawa Liquor store from Mrs. Carol Swinten, route 1, Weyauwega.

Some opposition to the application had been aired at previous council meetings. Charles Jepson, owner of Lloyd's of Manawa, appeared before the council and stated that he felt that the five taverns in town had enough competition without the issuance of a license to a grocery store.

Dobratz presently holds a beer license which was the subject of controversy a year ago when Jepson appeared before the council stating the same concern. The council later issued two other beer licenses to grocery stores.

The heart of the concern about the combination license apparently was the location of the store. There are no city

Masons host Knights at Monday night fest

CLINTONVILLE — The annual Knights of Columbus-Masonic banquet will be at 6:30 p.m. Monday with C. Vincent Cassiani, administrator of the Clintonville Community hospital, as speaker.

The Knights of Columbus will be guests of the Masons.

General chairman is Owen Nielson and co-chairmen of the program committee are Robert Otto and Burr Tolles.

Industries cast watchful eye at fuel situation

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN

Post-Crescent staff writer

For the most part, Fox Cities industries have little choice but to hope there isn't a fuel shortage. Those contacted said they have no definite indication there will be a shortage, although they are aware that external forces could cause one.

They said their suppliers have indicated they will continue to be provided with fuel, as long as the supplier is provided with fuel. If anything more than the few normal mid-winter days of natural gas interruption comes along, some companies could be forced to shut down.

Those in the best shape are the ones using coal. Some have switched to natural gas, probably because of current antipollution pressures, and if their gas is cut off for long periods, they are concerned about whether their fuel oil standby energy source will be adequate.

Hospitals are powered by natural gas, and presumably would be among the last to be cut off if there is a gas shortage. All have fuel oil as a standby energy source with Appleton Memorial Hospital recently adding a 10,000-gallon storage tank to boost its oil storage from a two-day to a seven day supply.

Fox River Paper Co. is one of those which recently switched to natural gas, having done so in 1969. Virgil VanAsten, plant engineer, said the firm couldn't exist on a reduced gas supply because it needs a full fuel source for production drying.

The company normally is faced with a mid-winter interruption, but relies on its fuel oil, he said. He said he would increase the three-day oil storage capacity, if he could.

VanAsten said suppliers indicated there could be problems in both oil and natural gas.

The Appleton coating and converting plant and the Roaring Springs, Pa., plant of Appleton Papers, division of NCR, use coal as their main energy source, but the Combined Locks mill uses natural gas. The mill could go to fuel oil or propane gas as an alternative fuel, as an oil boiler was recently added.

The company recently set up a special committee to study the problem and come up with recommendations on possible rationing or other possibilities.

Kimberly-Clark Corp. had set up a similar committee last winter and it recommended additional fuel storage facilities and that the firm find the most reliable fuel supply arrangements possible. Both measures were followed, but there is no guarantee if the suppliers are cut back, a K-C spokesman said.

"We'll have to just hope for the best as far as the winter cold and the Middle East situation are concerned," she said.

Spokesmen for natural gas and oil suppliers in the area said they had no reason at this time to warn of shortages. However, the oil spokesman said he believed there could be a natural gas shortage, and this would put excessive pressure on the fuel oil supply.

He suggested that if industry were on coal, there would be no shortage.

Shiocton will get school district tax reduction

SHIOCTON — School district taxpayers in Shiocton will receive a $5 per $1,000 equalized value tax reduction over the 1972-73 school year, and a $4 reduction over the rate approved at the annual meeting.

The rate of $19 per $1,000 adopted at the annual meeting has been reduced, according to law, to $15 under the new formula. Under the new law, tax is to be levied on the current year's equalized valuation, rather than on the valuation for the prior year.

The total equalized valuation, recently received, is $26,379,000, an increase of $3,502,000 over the 1972 equalized valuation. Under the new third legislation, if on the Monday in October the school board determines that a tax greater than that needed to operate the school district was voted in, the board may lower the tax voted at the annual meeting.

The new equalized valuation produces a tax levy of $395.685. Individualized by municipality it provides the following breakdown: The Village of Shiocton's portion of the levy is $71.520; Town of Black Creek, $22.953; Bovina, $104.952; Center, $8.865; Deer Creek, $2,941.50; Ellington, $74,086.50; Liberty, $47,719.50; Maine, $61,927.50 and Maple Creek, $720.

The board of education last week certified the tax levy in accordance with the new deadline which is the last working day of October. The previous deadline was Aug. 31.

The monthly report of Police Chief Gene Gorsythe was presented. It showed eight arrests, nine complaints, one accident under $200, three assists to the Waupaca County Sheriff's Department and four five-day tickets issued. One case of shoplifting was reported and two cases of theft. Total fines collected was $223. The report also indicated that a lecture had been given at Zion Lutheran Church in conjunction with the Sheriff's Department on illegal drugs.

City Clerk H.L. Crane also informed the aldermen that the city had received $3,079 in federal revenue sharing funds.

Jaycettes plan Halloween event at New London

NEW LONDON — A parade, dance and movies have been planned by the Jaycettes as part of their Halloween festivities.

The parade, for youngster through 12 years of age, will start at 6:30 p.m. Judging of costumes will be from 6 to 6:25 p.m. in front of Villa St. Vincent.

The parade route will be north on Pearl Street, west on Water Street, then south on Shawano Street to Washington Junior High School where a movie will be shown.

First and second prize winners will be announced prior to the movies. All youngsters will receive a treat before they leave the auditorium.

A costume dance will start at 8 p.m. for junior and senior high school students in the junior high gym. Prizes will be awarded for costumes. Live music will be provided for dancing.

CESA director reviews programs at Manawa

MANAWA — Robert Klimko, project director of Cooperative Educational Service Agency 8's Title I project, addressed representatives from the various schools and suggested local program topics recently.

Klimko also reviewed the materials and resources available at CESA 8 for use by the local councils, gave a demonstration on the topic, "Private School Involvement," and reviewed the role of the policy advisory board.

Officers elected to serve on the CESA 8 ESEA Title I Policy Advisory Board are Mr. and Mrs. Arden Patri, Manawa, as chairman and vice chairman, respectively. Mrs. Leile Wickesburg, Shiocton, is secretary.

The board is composed of elected representatives from schools in Manawa, Hortonville, Little Chute, Weyauwega and Clintonville.

Also attending from Manawa were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Amador and Dr. Robert G. Ames, members of the Manawa Elementary School Title I, ESEA Policy Advisory Board.

New London Legion Post meets Tuesday

NEW LONDON — Norris Spencer American Legion Post will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the clubhouse.

Business will include a report on the annual aerial membership round up that was held recently at Spring Green. Membership cards are available and can be picked up at the clubhouse and at Tuesday's meeting.

Possibility of honoring girl athletes at all-male dinner eyed in Hilbert

HILBERT — The possibility of including girl athletes as guests at the annual athletic-honor dinner will be studied by a committee, the Chamber of Commerce agreed Thursday night. The proposal will be voted on at the Nov. 15 meeting.

The high school principal, Charles Brenden, at the chamber's request, explained the popularity and success of girls' athletics to the group. Last year the chamber decided not to recognize the girls at the dinner but to continue with the traditional program of honoring all sophomore, junior and senior male athletes.

Brenden said two-thirds of the high school's female enrollment participated in volleyball, basketball and track. The girls have the same regulations as boys and had questioned him on why they could not receive the same recognition. The school is a leader in girls' competitive sports, he said.

The high school principal also noted that the girls had a steady adult following, in some cases more than the boys have. He also pointed out the won-loss record of the girls' basketball team last year.

Brenden said the program provided for the male athletes and top students

"was a fine compliment" to the organization, but he was asking that they consider the trend of the day and update the program to include the girls.

His recommendation was that only varsity athletes be honored. This way he said it would not increase the chamber's financial backing for the students and other guests. He felt the number would be the same. He said the students wanted to be recognized on their performance, not on year in school. By including only varsity athletes, talented freshmen who had made the varsity squad would not be overlooked, he said.

Victor Albers said he didn't think the high school students should be dictating to the chamber. He said he believed the chamber should make the rules. "We can't always give in to kids," he said, adding that there was too much permissiveness already.

Brenden said the students had a "valid point" and that if the school were going to teach representative government and democracy, the students should be listened to and have their suggestion considered on its merits.

Members of the committee appointed by president Joseph Anheier are Clarence Hemauer, Mrs. Audrey Pavlat and Tom Hardy.

In other business, the chamber agreed to continue to sponsor its annual Christmas turkey promotion. Raymond Krautkramer, chairman, will contact businessmen.

Harold Sippel reported that Big Brothers of Greater Calumet County had requested to speak to the group about its program. A representative will be invited to the next meeting.

The purpose of Big Brothers said Richard Yenchesky, past president of the organization, is to have fatherless boys identify with a male image. Big Brothers are particularly needed in the northern part of Calumet County. There are 18 Big and Little Brother matches in the county, all in the southern part.

The annual Chamber of Commerce Halloween Party will be held at the high school. However, it was reported that Carol Hauser, who has assisted the chamber for several years with the program, would not accept the full responsibility and was asking for help from the chamber and parents. Mrs. Pavlat volunteered to help and to try to get a few other parents.

Repairs to the Christmas lighting will be done by a local electrician.

Calumet civic group asked for aid for telephones, Big Brothers

NEW HOLSTEIN — The Calumet County Civic Association (CCCA) has been asked to help in securing better telephone service in the Charlesburg area.

The association also was asked for help in finding executive board members in the county for Big Brothers; to support the New Holstein Association of Commerce; to work on improving highway markers and to consider construction of snowmobile trails and historical society contributions.

Luke Schneider, an association member from the Brothertown area, said the organization could aid in improving telephone service to the area. He said business telephones there cost $15 to $18 monthly and that six to eight parties share a single line. A private phone costs $28 per month, he said.

Schneider claimed there has been no action by the telephone company to reduce the number of parties on each line from two to four which reportedly was budgeted in 1972.

Dale Zagrodnik, second vice president of Big Brothers of Greater Calumet County, requested aid in finding Big Brother executive board members in the northern part of the county.

He said the association was doing well in the area, but told members that the organization needed contacts in the northern part of the county.

Walter Bartel, representing New Holstein, requested representatives from each municipality in the CCCA with an association of commerce to attend the Nov. 1 meeting of the New Holstein Association of Commerce. He said the organization there is about to disband because of flagging interest.

William E. Hertel, Chilton, CCCA legal counsel, urged the group to work with the Calumet County Highway Committee and county safety commission to place warning signs in areas where driving may be hazardous.

George Hostettler, Stockbridge village president, said funds had been budgeted by the county board for snowmobile trails and maintenance and that $3,000 has been allocated for historical societies. A budget hearing has been scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Oct. 31.

Hostettler said no final recommendation had been made regarding three historical sites under consideration for funding, but that the planning and zoning committee had earmarked $3,000 for use at its discretion.

He also noted that Department of Natural Resources regulations on snowmobile trails must be followed because the agency controls funding for the trails.

The next CCCA meeting will be at Salm's Hall, Potter.

Calumet Hotline will present dance

CHILTON — Calumet County Hotline Inc., tentatively scheduled its first fund-raising holiday season dance for Dec. 29 when the group met here recently at Ebenezer United Church of Christ.

The time and place of the planned polka and modern music dance will be announced later. A sign committee will arrange for a 4- by 8-foot sign to be painted and erected on the wall of Papendieck's Upholstery Shop, Chilton.

Meetings of the group will be on the fourth Monday of every month after Oct. 29 with a minimum of four meetings annually. The Calumet County Association for Mental Health may be assigned to defray the entire cost of the Hotline telephone, which operates at Calumet Memorial Hospital from 7 to 11 p.m. The telephone number is 849-8916.

Training of new Hotline operators will be deferred pending word from Joe Mukawitz, guidance counselor and French teacher at JFK Preparatory School. St. Nazianz, on what arrangements can be made to use videotapes from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee for possible joint training of Hotline personnel at the school and the Calumet County group.

Tentative date of the first meeting for new operators is Oct. 29. Mukawitz said a number of students at the school are interested. He and three other faculty members could be an all-hour referral personnel group for the joint areas if telephone extension service can be arranged at a reasonable cost.

The Rev. Arland Dwell, New Holstein, resigned from the operator training duties, to be assumed by Mukawitz.

Annual fall concert scheduled Thursday at Hilbert High School

HILBERT — The annual fall concert offered by the high school music department will be 8 p.m. Thursday in the gym. The public is invited.

The mixed and girl's chorus, directed by Jay Jensen, will combine to sing a cantata, "How the West Was Won," which consists of American folk songs taken from the movie of the same title. The Swing Choir will present two popular songs.

The band, under the direction of John Hinkley, has prepared three numbers, "Come, Sweet Death," by J. S. Bach; "Balladare" a contemporary ballad, and a Burt Bacharach medley.

Fremont gets $8,279 for emergency projects

WAUPACA —The Village of Fremont received its first check Friday from the Division of Emergency Government. The $8,279 represents 75 per cent of a project to repair streets and clean up debris and flood-fighting after the March flooding of the Wolf River.

Village President Roger Schmoldt accepted the check from Robert Hensen, northeast area director of emergency government.

"This is a beginning," Schmoldt said. "Our initial request on this project was for $11,038. We also have a supplemental request for $5,849 to cover loss of sewer pipe from the stockpile behind the super market. It just floated down the river. A second supplemental request has been submitted in the amount of $15,900 to cover cost of cleaning the sewer line already installed."

Hensen said that he expected that approval of both requests would come through soon. The remaining 25 per cent of the initial project will be paid when the work has been inspected at Fremont and approved.

"This will be done, probably, this coming spring," Johnson explained. "Some of the areas in the county have received their initial checks, others have not. The inspections will be made when all of the projects in the county are completed and following that final payments will be sent."

Teacher to speak at convention Crash

MANAWA —Mildred Klotzbuecher, a Manawa Elementary School teacher, has accepted an invitation by the Department of Public Instruction to speak at the annual convention of the Wisconsin Education Association to be held Nov. 1-2 in Milwaukee.

She is scheduled to speak at the Individually Guided Education subsection from 1-3 p.m. on Nov. 1. Her topic will be "Teaching Strategies for the Implementation of IGE Concepts."

Recently Klotzbuecher and Dr. Robert G. Ames, superintendent of schools and principal of the Manawa Elementary School, attended a HUB-4 steering committee meeting at Kaukauna. The school is participating with the DPI in implementing IGE as a part of this HUB-4 network of schools to plan and organize in-service programs and exchanging of ideas among schools. Schools in the network include Appleton, Hortonville, Little Chute, Menasha, Neenah and Manawa.

The steering committee oversees and develops activities in the network including the sharing of teacher consultants, workshops, visitations, self-improvement processes, telephone conferences, newsletters, curricular ideas, materials and resource files.

Ames also announced that plans are under way for an open house of the Manawa Elementary School when construction is completed. Delivery of equipment and materials is holding up completion of the work.

Age 51, passed away late Saturday following a brief illness. He was born January 12, 1922 at Freedom, and had been a Kaukauna resident for the past eighteen years. He was employed at Thilmany Pulp & Paper Co. Mr. Schommer was a member of the Kaukauna VFW Post 3319 and the Little Chute Jacob-Coppus American Legion Post 258. He was an Army Veteran of World War II. Survivors are his wife, Mary (Van Toll); his mother, Mrs. John (Anna) De Goey, Kimberly; two daughters, Mrs. Ervin (Mary Ann) Plate, Hilbert, Mrs. Robert (Barbara) Hendricks, Kaukauna; three sons, Patrick, Little Chute, Anthony and Jeffrey, both at home; a half brother, John Wirth, Kimberly; a sister, Mrs. Alvin (Betty) Pennings, Combined Locks; a half sister, Mrs. William (Joanne) Jansen, Rt. 4, Kaukauna; and 5 grandchildren. Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 10 a.m. at St. Mary Catholic Church, Kaukauna with interment in St. John Cemetery, Little Chute. Rev. Charles Fredricks will officiate. Friends may call at the Greenwood Funeral home after 2 p.m. Tuesday. There will be American Legion and VFW memorial services at 7 p.m. and a prayer service at 8 p.m. on Tuesday.

Parent-teacher meetings slated at Clintonville

CLINTONVILLE — Parent-teacher conferences will be conducted in the public schools on Nov. 6, 7 and 8.

On Nov. 6 and 7, conferences will be from 3:15 to 5 p.m., and on Nov. 8, 2:35 to 5 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m. at the Bear Creek, Rexford-Longfellow, Dellwood, Embarrass, Junior and Senior High schools.

Mrs. Rosemary Rafoth, Mrs. June Schultz and Mrs. Marilyn Ehler, kindergarten teachers, will confer all day Nov. 8 in addition to the times slated above.

At the Bear Creek school, Mrs. Jacquelyn McMahon will conduct conferences in the afternoon all three days, and Mrs. Janice Johnson will hold conferences during the mornings of those same days for the kindergarten classes.

Letters were sent home with the youngest child parents have in school and the returned slips were to be indicating whether the parents plan to participate; and if so, the desired time. Teachers will schedule the parents as close as possible to the time chosen in the elementary schools. No specific time will be assigned at the junior and senior high schools, but the teachers will be given a list in advance of those parents who wish to see them.

Net income and sales increase at Allis-Chalmers

Net income and sales for the first nine months and third quarter of 1973 topped the net income and sales for the same periods a year ago at Allis-Chalmers Corp., Milwaukee-based firm with divisions in Appleton.

Net income was $12.0 million for the first nine months compared with $6.9 million a year earlier. This is equivalent to 96 cents per share and 55 cents, respectively.

Third quarter net income was $1.6 million, or 13 cents, compared with $900,000, or 7 cents, a year earlier.

Net income for the nine months included charges of $5,516,000 for plant closings and product line discontinuance, and reduction of provision for taxes by using estimated investment tax credit carryforwards of $2,850,000, said David C. Scott, chairman of the board, chief executive officer and president.

Sales were $855.7 million on a fully consolidated basis in the first nine months of 1973 compared with $705.0 million in the corresponding period of 1972. Operations of foreign subsidiaries were consolidated for the first time in 1972; however, this change had no effect on net income, Scott said.

Sales totaled $268.1 million in the third quarter of 1973 compared with $223.2 million a year earlier.

Scott commented that "encouragingly, we are ahead of plan at

Scouts, Webelos, to organize at Manawa

MANAWA —Cub Scouts and Webelos, will conduct their organizational meeting on Oct. 23 at Zion Lutheran Church at 7:30 p.m.

All registered Scouts and any boy eight years old or who has completed the second grade is invited to attend this meeting with his parents.

A Halloween party is being planned for after the kick-off meeting and registration. A special event for Nov. 6 also will be discussed. Registered Scouts will be able to attend the Holiday on Ice show at Green Bay for $1. The rest of the fee will be assumed by the Pack. Permission slips will be available at Tuesday's pack meeting.

Otto Hodel serves as Pack committee chairman and Robert Squires as Cubmaster.

THE Post-Crescent

Nixon defies courts, Congress

President Nixon has defied the courts and Congress and has declared that he will not release White House documents or tapes bearing on the Watergate investigation. His defiance has taken the form of a refusal to obey orders of both a federal district court and the U.S. Court of Appeals, the ouster of the special Watergate prosecutor and his staff and the impounding of all of his office records.

The attorney general and his chief deputy are sideline casualties because they did not go along with the firing of the special prosecutor.

The dramatic events of the weekend began Friday night when the President announced that, "with great reluctance," he was yielding ground over the Watergate tapes in order to avoid a head-on collision with Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox. But his proffered concession was in reality not much of a concession. He would personally prepare a summary of the tapes, then allow Senator John Stennis to listen to the tapes to verify the accuracy of his summary. But at the same time he ordered Cox to cease his court battle to have the tapes turned over to federal court and he denied Cox any access to other White House documents he was seeking. In reality he refused to comply with the order of Judge John Sirica, upheld by the Court of Appeals, and he imposed a severe handicap on Cox' further prosecution of the Watergate investigation.

Cox almost immediately rejected the President's offer of a compromise, saying that compliance with the President's orders "would violate my solemn pledge to the Senate and to the country."

When the President on Saturday ordered Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson to fire Cox, Richardson resigned, saying also that it violated an understanding with Congress when his appointment was confirmed. Deputy Atty. Gen. William French Smith refused to fire Cox and was fired himself. The calamity in the attorney general's office abated for the moment when Solicitor General Robert Bork became acting attorney general and fired Cox.

The President is not appealing his case to the Supreme Court. His offer of the summary of the tapes was made on a take it or leave it basis. Presumably if there is to be an appeal it will have to come from the Ervin Committee.

There is a real question today whether Richard M. Nixon can effectively carry out the responsibilities of his office for the remainder of his term. The nation stands today without a Vice-President or an Attorney General. The weekend's events may seriously impair the confirmation of Gerald Ford or any other nominee Nixon might make for Vice President. We hesitate to even speculate about the resignation or the impeachment of the President since it would leave the nation without elected leadership.

Meanwhile the strife in the Middle East is seriously impairing badly needed petroleum supplies from Arabian countries. And the same day's headlines announce that the administration may resign itself to a rate of inflation next year almost as bad as this year. The whole economy is being strangled by shortages of food and basic raw materials.

The President some time ago pleaded with the nation and Congress to forget Watergate and get on with the nation's business. But now he has put the Watergate issue in such a perspective that it must be resolved before almost any other government business can be transacted.

The state income tax

The average Wisconsin wage or salary earner is acutely conscious of the generous bite out of his earnings that is represented by the exactions of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service. Perhaps not so widely discussed, or appreciated, is the simultaneous deduction from the wage and salary check for the Wisconsin state treasury through the comparatively high — among the states of the country — state tax on incomes.

The Department of Revenue has published as a part of a generally lucid and useful biennial report on state tax administration an analysis of the per capita income tax burden of the resident of Wisconsin.

Perhaps most persons would not guess that the figure is as high as the department shows. Last year the $665,000,000 in personal income tax dollars sent to Madison by the people of Wisconsin — not including corporations — amounted to $150.61 per capita. The average family unit in Wisconsin is calculated at 3.9 persons. That means that a typical family is paying $600 yearly in income taxes to Madison in addition to the far greater amounts deducted from earnings or otherwise levied on taxable income to be sent to the federal treasury.

Coincidentally, the analysis by the agency provides a handy index to the economic capacity of the various localities of Wisconsin, and the substantial range from lowest tax liability to highest.

The per capita payment for Outagamie County was put at $143.23 last year, or approximately the state average, which is what most persons would have supposed. Yet the range is great and obliquely suggests the reasons for the strong involvement of the state government in local budget affairs during recent decades. Predictably, Menominee County was low with $36.51 and Ozaukee County, which has become a dormitory suburb of neighboring Milwaukee, was far out ahead with $233.22.

Secretary Wiegner of the state tax administration has produced an unusually useful reference guide for students of Wisconsin affairs, beyond the bare requirements of the law that commands such a biennial accounting of the department's revenue experience. The revelations explain as effectively as any other documentation the movement for state tax resource equalization that has been a keynote of the state administration's program and in which Mr. Wiegner has had a leading role.

The First Applefest

One immediate assessment we can make about the first Applefest is that it is worth doing again.

An idea which occurred to one woman a number of months ago mushroomed into a whole kaleidoscope of activities stretching out over a week's period. In fact a second assessment might be that there were too many activities strung out over too long a period.

But the main thrust of the idea was well served, that Appleton enjoy itself in a homemade fall festival, that we take a look at ourselves and realize what a really fine place this is to live.

We congratulate all the people who put Applefest together and made it work, and we hope they'll start thinking now about how they can improve upon it next year.

Budget surplus of $32 million seen

MADISON — There is a tale about a widely known Madison bon vivant, fondly told and retold because of the man's great popularity, who visited his physician for an examination when he concluded that he was not feeling as well as he desired.

The doctor examined him thoroughly and then questioned him about his alcohol consumption. Yes, the man said, he had many friends and he often meets them in bars and the nature of his professional work tends to generate more opportunities for patronizing the dram shops.

The doctor sternly ordered him to confine his intake to one ounce of spirituous refreshment daily.

"But, Doc," the man protested, "I spill more than that every day."

The tale was recalled the other day when Joe E. Nussbaum, the head steward of the Lucey political household in the Capitol, made public his annual report on the condition and the direction of the state government's financing.

Condition wondrously good
The chief of the Department of Administration said that the state's financial affairs are in wondrously good condition and that the earlier calculation that the highest state budget in history could be managed without new general taxation will be justified by events.

Indeed, wrote Nussbaum to Lucey, the state during the next two years is likely to have a surplus of $32 million which he said is "slightly in excess of a desirable balance of one per cent or $27 million of the general purpose budget."

Yet the sideline, without claiming any understanding of the science of accounting, may well wonder whether the state may yet spill more than that comparatively modest margin of safety.

The legislature is now in session. It is axiomatic that when the legislature is in session, public money is appropriated for enlarged or new purposes.

The legislature will return to Madison after the turn of the year to take up the so-called "mini-budget," in the jargon of contemporary politics. It may be that there will some day be a legislature that will reconsider its spending program after deliberation and cut it back. But nobody who has watched the politics of legislatures would venture even a modest wager on the probability.

In fact, there will be heavy odds on the chance that the January sitting of the lawmakers will spend a substantial sum of money beyond the record aggregate thus far committed. The probability is, in fact, that Lucey and Nussbaum will be urging a few such new expenditures upon the lawmakers.

Thus one wonders whether a private householder would be described as a prudent financial manager if he calculated such a narrow margin of one per cent between income and outgo.

Recalls $70 million budget

These dispatches have appeared under my name for a considerable period, a fact that tends to make the state's towering expenditure expansion especially startling. The first budget I examined as a reporter aggregated about $70 million.

It was in 1937 Philip LaFollette was beginning his third term as governor. Wisconsin was a three-party state, with the LaFollette Progressive party barely able to rule the Capitol as the largest of the trio, but without a literal majority in the legislature. LaFollette was the liberal leader of Wisconsin in the period.

Two years later he lost the election to a regular Republican, Julius P. Heil, whose principal complaint was that LaFollette spent too much.

Today the budget — thus far — is 40 times greater than the LaFollette spending program that was thought to be profligate by the electoral majority 35 years ago.

One wonders: Is Pat Lucey "spilling" some?

"IT'S A DEAL. WINNER TAKES ALL."

Sydney J. Harris

Harris still didn't enjoy hospital stay

For the first time in more than 20 years, I had a protracted stay in the hospital early this fall, and I'm sorry to report that the hospital scene hasn't changed a bit from my earlier remembrance.

Here we have the finest medical technology in the world, the deepest research, the most sophisticated equipment, and best prepared doctors—but hospital care itself still balances precariously on the personal equation.

Your odds of eluding death, and of eventual recovery, are much higher than they have ever been—but your odds of being comfortable and well-attended are as chancy as they were two decades ago, if not chancier.

This is much the same "people problem" that existed in all large institutions, and tends to get aggravated as they get larger. The problem of impersonality, of lengthy chains-of-command, of processes and procedures and protocol taking precedence over the simple human needs of the patient.

I wish I could offer some constructive proposal as to how this problem could be licked, but I don't have one. It may be a built-in defect of bigness itself—one of Parkinson's corollaries, saying that the larger an institution grows, the less is anyone responsible for the ultimate quality of the product.

My own care was rather better than average, after all, I was treated with an awareness that my experience might be transmitted into print.

And yet even this—with the best will in the world on the part of the top people—was only haphazardly translated down to the lower levels, where the quality of care depended on who happened to be on at what hour.

When you consider that a hospital room now costs $100 a day and up—mostly up—and that the notoriously underpaid personnel of the past are now getting paid on a par with other skilled workers, it seems bizarre that hospitals are still being run more for the benefit of the record-book and reporting system than for the personal welfare of the patient.

At least half the problem, as I see it, is that old bugaboo, human communications. While our technology has progressed by leaps and bounds, communication has been crawling sideways on its hands and knees.

Doctors don't have the time or resources to follow up on their orders, nurses don't listen to what their supervisors tell them, aides don't understand what they're told to do, or why, and the patient lies there wondering if anybody out there is really putting it all together for him.

Rich people are forever endowing new buildings and research facilities, somebody ought to endow a course in human communication, so that in the process of saving patients' lives, the hospital isn't making them so miserable they hardly care if they live or die.

Middle East picture changes

Fighting has once again changed the Near East beyond recognition. Ruling clichés about the Arabs, the Russians and the oil interests have been discredited.

Theoretically, the changed circumstances cannot yet be fully assessed. But, in fact, changes in Israel make a settlement harder than ever to arrange.

The most dramatic change is expressed by the performance of the Arabs. Before the latest war, many people, including this columnist, who had lived long among Arabs and should have known better, underrated the Egyptians and Syrians as fighters and organizers.

In fact, Egypt and Syria organized a well-coordinated attack on two fronts. Their soldiers have fought well and used the most sophisticated equipment to good effect. Even if they do not triumph, the Arabs have shown that given training, equipment and decent leadership they can form an effective modern force.

While they dispelled illusions about their fighting qualities, the Arabs also dispelled illusions about their terms of settlement. Every Arab statement, so far, has called for massive Israeli withdrawal as a precondition — not an outcome — of peace negotiations.

For example, President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, in his speech Tuesday, indicated Cairo would agree to peace talks under United Nations auspices provided Israel first yielded land occupied in the six-day war of 1967, and next guaranteed the rights of the Palestinian people to the land that is now Israel proper. That proposal, when coupled with the threat of sending missiles to "the very depths of Israel any minute," is not a peace offer. It is a way of saying "Either you commit suicide or I'll kill you."

One of the reasons the Arab position has emerged so clearly is that the true Soviet position has also emerged with clarity. There had been a fond notion that personal encounters between Soviet and American leaders had somewhat softened the Russian outlook. Even so wary a figure as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was taken in. He spoke of a "structure of peace," as if something deep had changed. For several days before finally acceding to Israel's frantic pleas for help, he searched vainly for signs of Soviet restraint.

In fact, the Russians have behaved in a far more bellicose way this time than during the six-day war. They have sent planes and tanks to the Arabs during the very thick of the fighting, and Soviet pilots are apparently bringing the equipment right up to the front lines. Far from showing self-restraint in the interests of détente with the United States, in other words, the Russians have played the jackal as never before.

The Soviet action exposes the game of the oil men. For a long time they have been advancing self-serving arguments in the guise of the American national interest. They have claimed that if only Washington would take some distances from Israel, the leaders of the producing countries would sell oil to the United States, Europe and Japan at reasonable prices in abundant quantities.

Geographic briefs

Polo, today a sport for the wealthy, began some 4,000 years ago in Persia as a game to hone the skills of mounted warriors, the National Geographic Society says. In the late 1800's British officers learned polo in India and took it home with them, and it spread throughout the Western world.

states which are the main purveyors of oil to this country and its friends?

A more definitive resolution of the military conflict, if nothing else, is required before the changed picture in the Near East can be sketched in full. But at least one major consequence is evident.

The most impressive force for settlement in the region—the movement of the Israeli doves—has been wiped out. In an open letter earlier this week, several prominent Israeli intellectuals came off their previous insistence that their country should make a gesture toward the Arabs as a first step toward peace.

"The Egyptian and Syrian attack against us," the letter said, "has led us to the painful conclusion that the policy of the present governments of the Arab states is to go to any lengths to destroy the existence of Israel." When enlightened men of good will and discrimination talk in such terms, it is only another illusion to suppose that events are tending toward a settlement.

Mr. Douglas to improve building

100 YEARS AGO
Appleton Crescent, Oct. 18, 1873.

Mr. Douglas has employed Mr. Lewis Bates to put a self-supporting roof on the corner stone block occupied by Willy & Greene's Furniture Store (northeast corner College Avenue and Oneida Street).

The new roof will allow the pillars to be taken out of the upper hall, which will have a square ceiling sufficiently high for ventilation. The entrance will be on Oneida Street, by a winding stairway. The hall would be excellent for dancing parties.

The other floors will be trussed and self-supporting also, so that the pillars on the first floor can be removed. The first floor is also to be lowered several inches.

The improvement will involve quite an outlay, but will greatly add to the value of that excellent business corner.

Seniors at Hortonville High School were to present "Pride and Prejudice" with Jim Rolf and Betty Nickel as Mr. and Mrs. Bennett. In the roles of the five marriageable Bennett daughters were Marilyn Poole, Joann Lippold, Betty Lippert, Carol Marcks, and Joann Strej.

The Appleton area had its first freeze of the season early that morning, the thermometer dropping down to 20 degrees.

An essay by Warren Beck, professor of English at Lawrence College, was included in an anthology of criticism published by the University of Minnesota Press. The essay was titled "For Virginia Woolf."

Earl Arnold, delegate to the Lutheran World Federation meeting in Helsinki, Finland, spoke at an "Echo" meeting at Trinity Lutheran Church. Mrs. Clarence Van Loo, Menasha, was state chairman of "Echo" meetings and Mrs. J.N. Ottosen was president of the Trinity Church Women, which sponsored the program.

David Schilling, Appleton student at Carroll College, Waukesha, was elected president of the sophomore class.

Gwen Parlin, Appleton junior at Wartburg College in Waverly, Iowa, was named general chairman of homecoming activities at the school.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

The poor kid never had a chance, did he?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible for a child to acquire the taste for nicotine from being exposed to cigarette smoke? My grandson, now 16, has been around people who smoked from the day he was born. I have seen the room so dense with smoke I could barely see through it when the boy was a baby. Now he has a terrible cigarette habit and can't get along for more than a few hours without them. He won't eat, is thin and run down. I am wondering how we could break this habit. His mother gave him and his younger brother cigarettes when they were very young. —Mrs. J.B.

state could be, and very probably are, related to his smoking. Breaking the habit? This, of course, can be tough. I only can suggest calling his attention to the physical disadvantages. If he seems mature enough, you might even suggest he sign up for one of the antismoking clinics in your area. But in answer to your main question, I would have to offer a cautious no. It is doubtful that the mere exposure to cigarette smoke would cause a physical addiction to nicotine.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can sugar diabetes cause impotence in men? If so, can it be treated? My husband and I are 35, have been married for 10 years and he has been impotent for three. He refuses to ask the doctor or talk about it. He says it can't be treated and diabetes is not the cause. —Mrs. B.R.W.

Impotence can be caused by diabetes but in my experience it usually affects older men, and your husband is only 35. If diabetes is the cause, meticulous control of the diabetes (sugar level) is essential. But there are so many other causes of impotence, some of them psychological, that they ought to be investigated, either by his doctor or via help from a marriage counselor.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor, whom I have doctored with for 10 years, always has been good about telling me the truth about tests and X rays. When I had an electrocardiogram, he said nothing about chronic ischemic heart disease.

But I have had angina pectoris for several years. What is chronic ischemic? I saw his report to Medicare. —Mrs. M.F.

You are making a mistake in thinking he has been holding out on what he tells you. You know you have angina pectoris. All he did was report to Medicare the technical term for the cause of the angina — restricted blood flow to the heart muscle. So resume your faith in your doctor.

What is angina pectoris? Is it dangerous? Is there a cure? If you would like to learn more about angina pectoris, write to Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent for a copy pe and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Courts

The Outagamie County Department of Social Services was given 30 days emergency custody of two Appleton brothers, ages 13 and 15, Friday in Juvenile Court.

The boys will undergo testing at Community Guidance Center and the younger one probably will be placed in a foster home, the court was told.

Judge R. Thomas Cane withheld delinquency findings and continued the case to Nov. 16.

The older brother has admitted stealing 600 turkey sandwiches intended for use at a wedding reception at Knights of Pythias Hall last Sept. 15 and one count of theft from a pinball machine at the Conway Motor Inn March 15.

The younger boy has pleaded guilty to running away from home and 10 other counts, most of them involving thefts from vending and amusement machines.

Restitution, which could run to more than $350, will be decided at the next court appearance.

The district attorney's office approved dismissal of theft charges against two 17-year-old Appleton boys Friday in Juvenile Court.

Appleton police charged the boys with stealing several rolls of insulation from a house construction site in the 400 block of Matthias Street last May 19.

The dismissals were asked after one youth pleaded no contest and the other pleaded guilty. Both boys had clear records.

Lucey leads state's Democrats in loud call for Nixon impeachment

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While their Republican counterparts were mostly noncommittal, several Wisconsin Democratic leaders Sunday urged consideration that President Nixon resign or face impeachment proceedings.

Democratic Gov. Patrick J. Lucey charged Nixon had "failed his country in the most fundamental sense" by firing Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox and Deputy Atty. Gen. William Ruckelshaus and accepting the resignation of Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson.

"He (Nixon) has put person and power ahead of principle," Lucey said in a statement. "He appears to have placed himself and his office above the law."

The president has an obligation to maintain public trust, Lucey said, adding, "If the president will not heed that obligation, it is imperative that Congress and the courts immediately take up the challenge."

Lucey said he would consult with Democratic and Republican governors "as to what steps we might take to help the nation through this grave constitutional crisis."

Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., called Cox's firing "disgusting," adding several constituents have urged he seek impeachment of Nixon.

"I think the wisest thing for the president to do at this time is to consider resignation," Obey said.

Donald O. Peterson of Eau Claire, Democratic national committeeman from Wisconsin, said Nixon had "clearly placed himself above the law."

The actions make impeachment a necessary consideration, Peterson said.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said the stunning weekend developments had produced "the gravest crisis I've seen in my 16 years in Washington, and the most serious of our generation."

"Impeachment should be looked into, but it's the kind of thing you should only do with a preponderance of evidence," Proxmire said.

Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., who previously had opposed impeachment, said Sunday the process "is the only recourse the House has now."

"This may be a major turning point for the better in U.S. history," Reuss said. "The sooner we get rid of the crooks, the better."

Several Democrats said the actions appear to have jeopardized Congressional approval of Nixon's vice presidential nominee, Rep. Gerald Ford, R-Mich.

"When a president is this close to impeachment, I think his selection of a possible successor must be scrutinized closely," Rep. Robert Kastenmaier, D-Wis., said.

"Anyone who would be acceptable to the president would not be acceptable to the Senate," Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said.

Former Republican governor Warren P. Knowles said it was tragic that the issue of executive immunity has not been resolved. He said he was concerned about potential damage to the system of U.S. government based on separation of powers between legislative, judicial and executive branches.

"If people lose faith in that, they don't have much to fall back on," he said.

Knowles declined specific comment on Cox' firing, as did GOP national committeewoman Mrs. John Pfeifer, Green Bay.

John MacIver, who headed Nixon's re-election campaign in Wisconsin, declined comment, saying he could provide "no intelligent judgement" on the matter.

The developments had a personal impact on Frank Tuerkheimer, law professor at University of Wisconsin-Madison who had been scheduled to become an assistant to Cox later this month. Tuerkheimer said he hopes to be able to continue teaching at UW.

Tapes case now back with Sirica

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's first legal defense of his conduct in his Watergate tapes crisis may come Tuesday before U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

As for Nixon's response to mounting talk of impeachment among Congress members, he continues to review his options with key advisers.

Special White House Counsel J. Fred Buzhardt said in an interview Sunday that the tapes case is now back in Sirica's court, rather than in the appeals court that ruled most recently on the matter. Buzhardt said that no White House action in Sirica's court was likely before Tuesday.

"I'm not sure precisely how we'll go in. We're working on that," he said.

The President, in announcing Friday he would ignore court orders calling on him to surrender tapes of Watergate-related conversations, said he would prepare a summary that would be in keeping with the spirit of court rulings.

Impeachment talk increased sharply after Nixon fired Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox Saturday. The President's action came after Cox indicated he would seek a court ruling holding the President in contempt for violation of the earlier ruling.

Elliot L. Richardson resigned as attorney general and his deputy, William D. Ruckelshaus, was fired because they would not carry out Nixon's order to fire Cox.

Presidential aides indicated it was unlikely Nixon would make a television-radio address today on the subject. They also discounted the possibility that he might elect to make a dramatic appearance before a joint session of Congress when the Senate and House return Tuesday from a long Veterans Day weekend.

Just what type of public response he would make, or in what form, was left in doubt.

Buzhardt and other Nixon associates expressed confidence, however, that once the President's side of the story was understood, impeachment talk "will pretty much go away."

'Unprecedented accuracy' with new X-ray method

WASHINGTON (AP) — Georgetown University scientists today announced development of a new, computerized method of X-raying the human body and said it's expected to provide "unprecedented accuracy" for medical diagnosis.

The developers said the new technique provides X-ray pictures having four times more detail than conventional ones. They said it opens the way to "precisely defining and locating such disorders as tumors, hemorrhages, blood clots, trauma (injuries), cysts, strokes, and improperly healed bones" without risk to the patient.

The technique, employing a special "scanning" device, is designed to produce cross-sectional X-ray views of any part of the body and display them automatically on a television screen.

The method was described as offering special powers for diagnosing brain disorders.

The device utilizing the new method is called the "ACTA Scanner" — The "ACTA" meaning "automatic computerized transverse axial." Only a prototype model has so far been built, at a cost of $200,000.

Its developers, headed by Dr. Robert S. Ledley, a professor of physiology and biophysics at Georgetown, explained its operation this way:

A pencil-thin X-ray beam passes through a "slice" or plane of the body and is detected, or "caught," by sodium-iodide crystals on the other side.

"Profiles" of the tissue density are received by the detectors as the X-ray beam moves across the object from 180 different angles. Thus, literally thousands of "readings" are made by the detectors within minutes and are fed into a computer.

The latter synthesizes and reproduces a complete cross-section of the part of the body viewed in a computer picture shown on a TV screen.

A color-analyzer unit in the computer translates the grey tones of the picture into color, making it easier to determine specific features, although the color does not correspond to the tissue color itself.

An average "scan" takes 4½ minutes, the researchers said.

In saying the new technique offers a four-fold increase in X-ray picture detail, the Georgetown announcement said:

"In comparison, conventional X-ray pictures have remained crude. Only a fraction of the rays were utilized."

The scientists said the new device is a more versatile follow-up to one called the "EMI."

"In comparison, conventional X-ray pictures have remained crude. Only a fraction of the rays were utilized."

The scientists said the new device is a more versatile follow-up to one called the "EMI Scanner," a diagnostic tool for brain disorders, built in England.

Illinois to probe 'gifts'

CHICAGO (AP) — The Better Government Association says it is supplying state's attorneys around the state with information it hopes will serve for grand jury investigations of purchasing practices throughout units of local government.

BGA Director J. Terrence Brunner said Sunday that disclosure during the last few days of gifts and kickbacks accepted by township officials from chemical supply salesmen "represent only the tip of the iceberg."

Brunner told a news conference: "Our investigation concentrated on township highway commissioners, but the companies and salesmen who have made kickbacks an integral part of their selling strategies do business with towns, with school districts, with counties and with local sewage treatment facilities as well."

"The implications of this kickback system reach far beyond an individual road commissioner receiving a television or a gift certificate or a free trip."

A two-month investigation by the BGA, The Associated Press and Illinois newspapers which are AP members, showed that nearly all of 127 officials interviewed in 56 counties were aware that chemical specialty and supply salesmen made gifts available.

Brunner said the BGA had evidence that 300 public officials in more than 70 counties were involved, adding that "it is our hope that the information we supply to the state's attorneys will serve as the basis for grand jury investigations of purchasing practices by local governmental units all across Illinois."

An estimated $3 million to $4 million is spent each year by townships and road districts on chemicals and supplies, the investigation showed.

Brunner said officials who accept these kickbacks can be put into two categories:

"First, there are those few who are using every possible device to transform their public responsibilities into private profit."

"Secondly, there are those officials who simply do not know any better—who do not see anything wrong because, in the words of one, 'If I don't take it, they'll just live it to the next guy.'"

Brunner said the time has come for officials in both categories "to begin to understand that every public office, no matter how small, carries with it the responsibility to conduct the public's business honestly and objectively."

"Kickbacks," he said, "dilute the tax dollars of every citizen who resides in a town or township where elected officials let themselves be taken in by salesmen who offer them a shiny premium or a night on the town."

The BGA is a nonpartisan citizens' watchdog organization.

The Post-Crescent Appleton-Neenah-Menasha, Wis.
Monday, Oct. 22, 1973 A-8

Methodist Church has scheduled its annual salad luncheon and fall bazaar, Oct. 26, at the church. Under the general chairmanship of Mrs. Russell Winterfeldt, doors will open at 10:30 a.m. for the sale of tickets, baked goods, candy, garden products, bazaar items and white elephant articles. Their salad luncheon is planned from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. with supper slated from 4:30 to 8:30 p.m. with Mrs. Henry Diestler, chairman. Serving on the committee are Mrs. Paul Hameister, baked goods; Mrs. Herbert Brei and Mrs. Earl Jaquot, bazaar items; Mrs. Harry Holz, candy; Mrs. Allan Sykes, publicity; Mrs. Robert Larson, canned goods and garden produce; Mrs. Marie Goen, white elephant, and Mrs. Marvin Schroeder, tickets. "Boutique and Country Store" is the theme of the Oct. 25 event being sponsored by Grace Circle of The King's Daughters, Kaukauna. The project is scheduled from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the Heart of the Valley Chamber of Commerce Building, 122 W. Wisconsin Ave., under the co-chairmanship of Mrs. Robert Pfister and Mrs. Tom Gustman. Main feature of the Oct. 25 bazaar is the grab bag booth. Boutique items include a selection for decorating the home, gift giving, stocking stuffing, exchange of gifts, children's stuffed toys and games, wreaths, topiary trees, ornaments, plaques, decorative candle ensembles, handmade flowers and hand-painted wall switch plates. On sale at the country store will be bakery, candies, brandied fruit, preserves, pickles and jellies. Kimberly's Holy Name Parish Library bazaar has set aside Oct. 27 and Oct. 28 for its project.

Doors will be open on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and on Sunday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Proceeds will be used to benefit Holy Name's Parish Library begun eight years ago with only 35 volumes on the shelves. Since the conversion from baptistry to library, literary offerings have swelled to 1,000. The service, open daily on a self-checkout basis, has become a haven for many retired persons in the parish. A children's section has been added along with books of interest to women. According to librarian, Dorothy Gehrman, "Since Vatican II, women have really begun to take an interest or a renewed interest in themselves, their marriages and family life in general." Gehrman's dream for the eight-year-old library is to raise enough funds to be able to offer tape recordings on a variety of subjects to patrons for home use.

Samoa woman talks of Island

BY JOYCE SHERMAN Post-Crescent correspondent SEYMOUR — Methodist women heard Mrs. Penelope Utu of American Samoa tell of her country Tuesday during a slide presentation. Mrs. Utu was a crusade scholar years ago when she came to the United States for her education and then returned to her country to help educate her people. She returned to the United States recently to share her experiences with other women at the first National Assembly of United Methodist Women in Cincinnati during October. The balance of the month will be spent in Wisconsin. Then it's on to New Orleans where she will talk to the Women's Division of the General Board of Global Ministries. Mrs. Utu is a lay preacher in American Samoa which is one of 10 inhabited islands in the South Pacific, six of which are under the possession of the U.S. For the purpose of local administration, American Samoa is divided into three districts, each of which has a native governor. Mrs. Utu taught science in a Samoan teachers' college for several years. She explained that two years ago a new program opened at the resource center there providing tutoring for slow learners. The literacy rate is very high, she said, but few students receive college educations. Her husband, also a lay preacher, passed his exams in 1962. They have three children, ages 13, 11 and 8. Mrs. Utu told the group that Methodism was the third largest religious group on the islands. The London Laymen Society is the first, and Catholicism, the second. She further stated that on Sunday, "You can tell the Methodists from the other religious groups, as all Methodists dress entirely in white to go to church." The work of the Methodist women began in 1944 in American Samoa. According to Mrs. Utu, the women are hard workers and have complete charge of the parsonage and the church. There are two worship services each Sunday. The Board of Missions of the Methodist Church helps defray expenses for books and the school. Recently the board purchased land for an agricultural development. Mrs. Utu's slide presentation featured an Independence Celebration from 1962 consisting of floats, beauties and bands, similar to such events in the U.S. She told of boat races that draw spectators much like football games in the U.S. Boats are long and narrow with a crew of from 48 to 60. During her presentation, Mrs. Utu showed the group points of local interest built and financed by the mission fund. Indicating that the country speaks Polynesian, Mrs. Utu sang a hymn and recited the twenty-third psalm in her native tongue. According to the speaker, the government is headed by a king. The flag is red and blue with five gold stars symbolizing the "cross of Jesus." Her village is made up of homes built on stilts with large open areas and thatched roofs. Shades are made of coconut leaves and can be pulled down in case of rain. Most families have a "family home" next to a "guest house." The people sleep on small hand-woven mats. Cooking is done mostly over open fire in large kettles. Ovens are built with a pile of stones on which pots sit, then more stones are piled on top and covered with banana leaves. Mrs. Utu stated "then, after about two hours, you uncover the pot, and your food is ready." Their largest industry, employing from 700 to 800 people, is the fish canneries. They have both Star Kist and Van Camp canneries with tuna being the main export. Small plantations grow grapefruit, bananas, cocoa beans, coconuts, yams and taro. The speaker told the women that they bake their grapefruit much like people in the U.S. bake potatoes. Children's games include marbles, cricket, volleyball and pool. Swimming is a sport, also, and guitar and ukelele are the instruments played. When asked about the temperature and rainfall in her country, Mrs. Utu explained that temperatures range between 80 to 90 degrees year-round, and that because of sea breezes, the climate is a comfortable one. Even though Samoans have a heavy yearly rainfall, there is always a water shortage and homes turn off their water several hours during the day. The rainy season extends from December to March. Transportation is very limited, she concluded, featuring a network of approximately 70 miles of roads. There are boat and air connections between the Samoan Islands and the West Coast of the U.S. and Australia.

Square dance planned

A public square dance sponsored by St. Therese Home School Association is planned from 8 to 12 p.m. Oct. 27 at St. Therese Activity Center, 213 E. Wisconsin St. Caller is Red Vanderloop, Green Bay. A $3 admission for couples is being asked. Refreshments will be served.

DANK plans Octoberfest

MENASHA — DANK group of Appleton has planned its Octoberfest dance for 8 p.m. Oct. 27 at Sabre Lanes, Midway Road. Refreshments and snacks will be available. Tickets are $2.50 per person and may be purchased at the door. The public is invited.

German theme chosen for bazaar

St. Paul Lutheran Ladies Aid of Appleton will open its annual bazaar with a German theme, "Gemütlichkeit" on Oct. 24. The event will feature a koffee kornet from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m. and a German-style luncheon from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. "Gemütlichkeit" will take place at 9 a.m. in the school gymnasium, 225 E. Harris St. Decorative booths of home-spun lore will offer bakery, candy, aprons, fancy work, Christmas decorations and cards, flowers and plants, white elephant articles, surprise packages, vanilla, candy molds with demonstrations, country store, Girl Pioneer displays, novelties for all ages, and a fish pond for children. General chairman Mrs. Robert H. Kositzke, will be assisted by Mrs. Lester Schulz. Other committee members are Mrs. James Kositzke, dining room; with Mrs. Alma Horn assisting, and Mrs. Carlie Krause, kitchen, assisted by Mrs. Orrin Damsheuser.

Sheinwold on bridge

Contract defeated by unusual defense

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD
"Live and let live," said Helpful Henry. So saying, he made the "killing" return. Henry is a very friendly fellow, but somehow he always remembers which side he is rooting for.

West opened the ten of diamonds, and South played low from the dummy. Helpful Henry, who held the East cards, won with the king of diamonds and looked thoughtfully at the dummy. Then he made his little remark and his killing return.

Henry could see that a diamond return was hopeless. The reason was that Henry knew how to count.

Dummy had 12 points, and Henry had 9 points. South had at least 16 points for his opening bid. The total came to 37 points, out of the 40 points in the complete deck. Hence West could have only 3 points at most.

QUEEN POSSIBLE

From this kind of counting, Henry knew that his partner might have the queen of diamonds but then wouldn't have any side entry to the suit.

The best chance was to play West for a high club or a high heart of some description. For this reason, Henry returned — a low spade!

This rode right up to dummy's ten, of course, which didn't surprise Henry at all. There was no way to stop dummy from making one spade trick.

South needed the heart finesse for his contract, so he took it there and then. West won with the king of hearts and returned his remaining spade. This gave Henry four spade tricks, enough to defeat the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

You have opened the bidding with one notrump, and partner has responded two spades. You hold: S-8 7 3, H-A Q 9 5, D-Q J 4, C-A K 10. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. In this situation you should rebid only with a fine fit for partner's suit.

Ann Landers

Welfare facts outlined by teen

Dear Ann Landers: I am 15 years old. Dad died four years ago of cancer. There are five children in the family younger than I. My dad didn't belong to a union, he was self-employed, had no social security, and his insurance just barely covered his medical bills. Three years ago Mom had to go on welfare.

When we buy groceries with stamps some folks in the store look at us as if we are taking money out of their pockets. Sure, people on welfare cost taxpayers money, but Dad paid his taxes when he was alive and Mom can't feed us kids on what she makes working in a bakery.

I read some facts about welfare in an article put out by The Committee on Political Education. Every American should see it. You run the biggest billboard in America, Ann. Please print it.

Fact No. 1: People wind up on welfare not because they are cheats or loafers but because they are poor. They are poor not only in money, but in everything. They have had poor education, poor health care, a poor chance at decent employment and poor prospects for anything better.

Fact No. 2: Of the 15 million people on welfare, two million are aged, permanently disabled or blind. Three million are mothers.

Fact No. 3: Nobody is getting rich on welfare. At best, it allows barebone living. Maximum payment for a family of four ranges from $700 a year in Mississippi to $3,600 in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Fact No. 4: Cheating on welfare is not rampant, but minimal. No program involving 15 million people can be completely free of fakers. Probably less lying and cheating goes on in the Welfare Department than in the Internal Revenue Department.

Fact No. 5: Welfare mothers are not having babies just to collect extra money. Nearly 70 per cent of all children on welfare are legitimate, according to H.E.W.

Fact No. 6: The welfare rolls are not made up mostly of blacks. More than 48 per cent of the welfare families are white, 43 per cent are black, the remaining are Orientals, American Indians and other ethnic groups.

I hope this will help to reduce bigotry and clear up some misunderstanding. —You Might Be Next

Dear Friend: Thank you for helping to educate millions of people today. I checked your facts with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and they are correct.

Dear Ann Landers: Why are people so stupid? Why do they marry without the slightest thought to family background? Not only the physical health but the mental health of prospective husbands and wives should be carefully examined. Is there anything that can be done to smarten people up? Perhaps a course in genetics in our public schools might help. The ignorance along these lines is appalling. Comment, please. —Wanted: A Better World

Dear Wanted: The basis for most marriages is emotional, not rational. I know of no way to "smarten up" the emotions.

Logan Clendening said it best: "Men are NOT going to embrace genetic findings. They are going to embrace the first attractive, trim-figured girl with limpid eyes and flashing teeth, despite the fact that her germ plasm might be reeking with cancer, hypertension, hemophilia, color blindness, hay fever and epilepsy."

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious—lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "The Key To Popularity." Send 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.
